TITANIC BULKHEADS, ONCE CLOSED, WERE OPENED AGAIN

New Evidence Comes Out in London Inquiry Into Disaster---Ismay's Conduct Exemplary, Says Witness.

London, May 9.—Evidence that the doors of four water-tight bulkheads had been opened after having been closed from the bridge was introduced today at the British wreck commission's inquiry into the loss of the White Star steamer Titanic. This was done, according to Thomas Dillon, of the engineer's staff, in order that the engineer crew might reach the pumps.

Dillon said that after the water-tight compartments had been closed from the bridge the chief engineer ordered his men to go through four boiler rooms in order to reach the pumps in boiler room No. 5. To carry out this order the men were obliged to open the doors of four water-tight bulkheads and having done so they left the doors open.

Men Did Not Reach It.

Replying to a question from Lord Mersey, the president of the commission, witness said that the men did not go into boiler room No. 5, because there was too much water there. In fact the water was leaking through into boiler room No. 4.

At this point the atorney for the White star line, Sir Robert Finlay, explained that the doors mentioned by the witness could not be opened without being released from the bridge.

After the last boat had left, Dillon testified, he went to the poop deck, where there were many men but no women. When the Titanic foundered he was sucked down about two fathoms and was later picked up unconscious. He remembered having swam about for some twenty minutes before being rescued, and saw, he said, at least 1,000 other men swimming or floating on the Indiana Voters Registering First Time in History of State.

DELEGATES TO MEET

Indianapolis, Ind., May 9.—For the first time in history Indiana voters are registering today, in compliance with a law passed at the last state assembly. For those who fail to register today, two other opportunities, one in September and one in October, will be given.

The registration in the cities of the state is said to be comparatively heavy today, but farmers are being kept away from the booths by work.

Delegates Will Confer.

Roosevelt and Taft delegates from Indiana to the republican national convention will hold a conference at the Claypool hotel in this city next Monday.

State Chairman Fred A. Sims called a meeting of the whole delegation for Monday afternoon to discuss an assessment to pay entertainment expenses in Chicago. Today Charles Campbell, manager of the Roosevelt campaign in Indiana, sent out a summons for the ten uncontested Roosevelt delegates and the twelve contested delegates to meet Monday morning to consider measures for the contest to be made before the national committee for seats in the convention.

New Chief Chosen by Confederate Veterans

GEN. BENNETT H. YOUNG.

Macon, Ga., May 8.—Gen. Bennett H. Young, of Louisville, Ky., commander of the Army of Tennessee, was elected commander-in-chief of the United Confederate Veterans here today. General Young is one of Kentucky's famous orators.

After the withdrawals of Generals Walker and Van Zant from the race for commander-in-chief, General Young's election was made unanimous. General Walker was elected honorary commander in chief.

PROGRAM WILL ATTEND EVENT

New Y. W. C. A. Corner Stone Will Be Laid Next Thursday.

WILL MARK AN EPOCH

With auspicious ceremonies and an elaborate program beginning at 3 o'clock Thursday afternoon, May 16, the cornerstone of the new Young Women's Christian association building on West Wayne street will be set in place. Officers of the association in conference with members of the building committee have selected this date for the important event which will mark an epoch in the history of the local association. Messrs. J. B. Franke and D. N. Foster compose the committee in charge of the program.

The stone will be set in place by Mrs. J. S. House, president of the association, who will preside at the ceremonies, and the platform will be occupied by the officers, trustees and members of the building committee. The principal address for the occasion will be delivered by Miss Marsh, of Indianapolis, territorial secretary of the Indiana association.

The program will open with the rendition of the national hymn, led by E. F. Yarnelle, after which the invocation will be delivered by Rev. Henry B. Master, pastor of the First Presbyterian church. After Miss Marsh completes her address, the receptacle to be placed in the stone will be presented by Mrs. George Evans, first vice president of the association. Rev. Arthur J. Folsom, pastor of the Plymouth Congregational church, will pronounce the benediction. The program will close with the "Coronation."

In the Box.

The receptacle to be enclosed in the cornerstone will contain a Bible, photographs of the old association headquarters on West Berry street and foundation of the new building, matter pertaining to the campaign for funds waged last May, newspaper clippings telling of the battle for money with which to erect the new home and newspaper accounts of the laying of the cornerstone. Included also in the box will be a list of names of those who subscribed to the fund, a list of the membership up to date, a copy of the charter, constitution and by-laws, the Association Monthly, history of the Fort Wayne association and a photograph of the campaign clock which stood at the southwest corner of the court house during the building fund campaign.

Injured South Bend Motorman Pinioned Half an Hour in Agony.

SOME INDIANA NEWS

South Bend, Ind., May 9.—Samuel Culp, motorman of a city street car, begged bystanders to take an ax and chop off his legs after he had been hit by his own car and fatally injured today.

The man was pinioned under the trucks of the car and lay half an hour in agony before he was released. He is in the hospital and is believed to be dying.

Culp had jumped off the car to turn a switch. The brakes did not work and the car struck him.

Prisoner Refuses to Work on the Streets at Columbus.

Columbus, Ind., May 9.—The experiment of working county prisoners on the city streets and alleys is not proving entirely successful here. The first prisoner, after the city and county officials made an agreement about the work, escaped by running and has not been seen since. C. F. Brown, the street commissioner, took out David Gaddis, of Edinburg, who had been sentenced to hard labor, and attached a ball and chain to one of his legs. Gaddis refused to work and said he had been in jail often enough to know the law. He said he was not required by law to work in the open and that if the city would not provide an inclosure for him he would loaf. Accordingly he sat down. The

REGISTRATION RUNNING HEAVY

Party Leaders Say They Are Surprised at the Results.

KEEP OPEN TONIGHT

Republican County Chairman A. E. Houk and Secretary John Wessel, of the democratic central committee; in conference at 2 o'clock this afternoon, agreed that from the reports received up to that time, an average of one-third or perhaps more, of a total poll will be represented today at the first registration of voters for the November election.

Registration in the city precincts has proved better than was expected, but reports from the country say the farmers are not registering heavily on account of having so much pressing farm work on hand.

At 1:30 o'clock this afternoon three precincts reported that an average of nearly 150 had registered. The polling has been steady during the day in the city with a jump at noon which nearly tripled the total registered up to that time. If the country registration picks up late this afternoon or this evening, the earlier totals predicted will be exceeded.

Information from some of the leading shops in the city announced that employes who could not find time to register during the day wished to do so this evening, and it has been decided to keep the voting places open until 8 o'clock this evening. This will be done in every precinct in the city as it is the wish of party leaders to secure as heavy a registration as possible today.

MUST SERVE SENTENCE.

Missouri Supreme Court Acts in Case of Ketchel's Slayer.

Jefferson City, Mo., May 9.—Walter S. Dipley, convicted of the murder of Stanley Ketchel, the pugilist, must serve his life sentence in the Missouri penitentiary, according to a decision of the supreme court today. Goldie Smith, convicted and serving a life term as an accessory of Dipley, was discharged from the penitentiary by the court, which reversed the decision against her. The court held the evidence was not sufficient to convict her.

FOUR CHILDREN DIE AS GRAVEL PIT CAVES.

Green Bay, Wis., May 9.—Four little girls living on a farm about four miles north of this place, met death in a gravel pit last night, according to word received here today. The children were sent out by their parents to bring home the cows. They stopped to play at a gravel pit and a cave-in occurred. The children were Amanda Barth, aged 13; Augusta Barth, aged 11, and Katie Barth, aged 9 years, daughters of Frank Barth, and Gretchen Rosenberg, aged 9.

TWO OF THE RIOT VICTIMS WILL DIE

Little Hope for Miners Who Fell in Fight With Police.

DISTRICT IS QUIET

Pottsville, Pa., May 9.—The three men injured in yesterday's fight between state police and idle anthracite mine workers at Mipersville, are still alive but there is little hope for two of them.

No trouble was experienced when repair men and pump men went to work today at the collieries about Minersville. The mountains were dotted with pickets who hid behind bushes and rocks, and who stopped many workmen on their way to the collieries and warned them not to work today.

Several hundred company hands who had been doing repair work were sent home by the Philadelphia & Reading company officials at Shamokin today with instructions to remain away from the mines until the coal suspension ends.

Lehigh Valley coal and iron police dispersed miners' pickets near two collieries in the neighborhood of Mt. Carmel and Centralia. They arrested after a sharp fight, a foreigner for throwing stones at company hands.

An attempt was made at Locust Gap during the night to wreck a Reading railway freight train. The train was not derailed.

Owing to unsettled labor conditions in the coal region special policemen and trackwalkers have been distributed along the Reading railway.

DEATH'S TOTAL MOUNTS HIGHER

Five Fatalities Follow a Blast Furnace Explosion.

CLEVELAND IS SCENE

Cleveland, O., May 9.—The number of victims of last night's explosion at the central blast furnace of the American Steel and Wire company was increased to five today when Andrew Husek, 38, and John Pollock, 31, died at a hospital. The other dead are John Zella, Wm. Champlin and an unknown foreigner.

Several of the fourteen injured may die, attending physicians said today. Nine of these are not out of danger. The explosion was caused by gases which accumulated in the furnace from hot coke.

The accident occurred shortly after midnight when a furnace was being cleaned out preparatory to closing for the night, and the victims were rushed to hospitals in ambulances that were hurried to the scene.

TWELFTH VERY ENTHUSIASTIC

Niezer Declares Whitley Set Pace for the District.

IN MARSHALL BOOM

After having received a letter from H. D. McLallen, of Columbia City, assuring him that enough Columbia City business men to completely fill one special car have pledged themselves to go to the Baltimore convention, Maurice Niezer, secretary of the state delegation to the national meeting said that Whitley county is setting a pace for other parts of the Twelfth district in the "Marshall for President" boom. Mr. McLallen stated in his letter that in one afternoon enough of the city's representative business men had pledged themselves and put up the necessary money for the trip to contract for one special car.

"I expect to see the Twelfh district send a big delegation to Baltimore," said Mr. Niezer. "The enthusiasm of Whitley county is bound to impregnate the entire district and if such support is tendered our governor from other quarters, he has an excellent chance to be in the active running at the national convention."

Mr. Niezer has been made secretary of the Indiana delegation and declars that he has a tough job on account of the big demand for tickets to the assembly hall where the sessions of the convention are to be held. Everybody who goes wants a ticket, and it will indeed be a hard thing for him to supply all who ask.

ALLEN IS GIVEN HIS TURN.

Defense Attempts to Break Down Conspiracy Charge.

Wytheville, Va., May 9.—Counsel for Floyd Allen, on trial for the murder of Prosecutor Wm. M. Foster, in the Carroll county court at Hillsville, last March, began in earnest today to break down the evidence introduced by the commonwealth to show that a conspiracy existed between the Allens to shoot up the court. It placed on the stand witnesses to refute the conspiracy charge and to testify as to the good character of the younger members of the Allen clan. Robert Wilkson, cashier of the Hillsville bank, testified that Sidna Allen had deposited in the bank just before the shooting a considerable sum of money. This, he said, was still on deposit in the bank.

TODAY IN CONGRESS.

Washington, May 9.—The day in congress:

Senate.

Began consideration of rivers and harbors appropriation bill.

Titanic inquiry was reopened. M. L. Farrell, news editor of a Wall street ticker service, testifying regarding misleading reports.

House.

Resumed consideration of the legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill.

Chairman Pujo, of so-called money trust investigating committee, announced that banks were responding fully to committee's inquiries.

ONE BODY RECOVERED; NOW DRAG LAKE FOR SIX OTHERS

Entire Boating Party of Seven Thought to Have Perished During Sudden Storm on Fox Lake, Ill.

Fox Lake, Ill., May 9.—The body of Mrs. Mabel Hansen, 25 years old, of No. 4044 Austin avenue, Chicago, who with a party of seven persons, was drowned in a storm which swept Fox Lake last evening, was recovered today and searching parties are dragging the lake for the bodies of the other victims. The other persons believed to have been drowned are:

Herman Huhn, 19 years old, restaurant keeper, Ingelside, Ill.

George Russell, 33, liveryman, Ingelside, Ill.

Jacob Hoefer, 25, Des Plaines, Ill.

Michael Klunder, 24, 1643 Brigham street, Chicago.

Louis Truschuske, 26, saloonkeeper, 1643 Brigham street, Chicago.

Unidentified man, 20 years, believed to have lived in Chicago.

A cap, the pocketbook of Hoefer, a book, an oil can and a number of empty bottles were found in the water near the body of Mrs. Hansen.

The party left the Lippincott hotel, on Fox lake, to go to another hotel shortly after 8 o'clock last night in a 16-foot gasoline launch owned by Huhn.

Five minutes after leaving the hotel wharf, persons on the shore heard cries for help and a boat was sent to the rescue.

No trace of the boat or the victims was found and after an unsuccessful search the quest was abandoned until this morning.

CARPENTERS SAY STRIKE IS OVER

It Will Be Called Off at a Meeting to Be Held Tonight.

BIG CALL FOR HELP

According to Special Organizer Sullivan, of Indianapolis, who is in the city directing union carpenters in their labor trouble, the strike which was declared May 1 will end tonight at a meeting of the local union to be held in the hall above the Star theater. Mr. Sullivan declares that there is such an enormous demand for carpenters in Fort Wayne that with the exception of about eight men, all of the sixty members of the union who were out on account of the new agreement dispute have gone to work.

"We cannot secure enough union men to fill the demand in Fort Wayne," said Mr. Sullivan. "This is as good a building season as Fort Wayne has experienced in ten years. It shows conclusively that the political campaign is not killing business and that people are paying more attention to business than ever before during a presidential campaign year. One can scarcely visit any portion of the city without finding extensive building in progress."

Mr. Sullivan stated this morning that one could scarcely call the disagreement here a strike. He said that the only feature tending toward such a condition occurred when on May 1 union carpenters left the places where they were working for open shop contractors, and secured places with builders who favor a closed shop and agreed to pay the minimum wage scale of 40 cents per hour.

LABOR LEADER SENTENCED.

Englishman Must Serve Six Months for Sympathy Speech.

Manchester, Eng., May 9.—Tom Mann, a labor leader, was today found guilty in the court of the assizes of having endeavored to influence British soldiers from their duty, and sentenced to six months' imprisonment. Mann was arrested on March 21, after he had delivered a speech at Salford in sympathy with the coal strikers.

Before being sentenced the labor leader addressed the court. He argued that when acting under the civil law the soldiers were only citizens. He denied that he had endeavored to influence soldiers as soldiers from the performance of their duty.

HEAD OF SHRINERS CHOSEN.

Los Angeles, Cal., May 9.—William J. Cunningham, of Baltimore, former imperial deputy potentate, was elected imperial potentate, succeeding John Frank Treat, of Fargo, N. D., by the imperial council, Nobles of the Mystic Shrine, here yesterday.

Ernest A. Cutts, of Savannah, Ga., was elected imperial outer guard.

William S. Brown, of Pittsburg and Benjamin W. Rowell, of Boston, were re-elected imperial treasurer and imperial recorder, respectively. Dallas, Tex., was chosen for the 1913 conclave.

BEGINS DUTIES IN THE DISTRICT

Rev. W. H. Chase Enters Work as District Head of Anti-Saloon League.

SUCCEEDS MR. SHIREY

The new superintendent of the Anti-Saloon league for the Fort Wayne district, Rev. W. H. Chase, arrived in the city Thursday evening and has entered actively on his duties. He succeeds Rev. N. C. Shirey, who was transferred to Indianapolis, and has taken the latter's old offices in the Tri-State building on East Berry street.

Rev. Mr. Chase comes from Jacksonville, Fla., where for some time past he had been the state superintendent for Florida of the Anti-Saloon league. He had formerly been district superintendent for the league at Pittsburg, Pa., and was also assistant state superintendent of Pennsylvania. Prior to that he was in the active ministry in the east.

The new superintendent left his former home in Florida the last day of April. He went direct to Indianapolis and leaving there has been visiting Marion, Bluffton and other places in the district on work connected with the Anti-Saloon league.

Just now the superintendent is busily engaged, aside from his office duties, in hunting a house. His family will remove here next week from Florida and he wants a home into which they may move when they arrive.

AMBASSADOR RESIGNS.

Berlin, May 9.—Count Paul Wolff-Metternich has resigned his office as German ambassador to Great Britain.

Mr. Shambaugh As a Waiter

THEODORE F. THIEME, of the Wayne Knitting Mills, wanted to see S. E. Mulholland, of the Indiana Lighting company, for a few minutes the other Sunday, so he went to the 'phone of his residence on West Berry street and called up Mr. Mulholland at the latter's home. Mr. Thieme found Mr. Mulholland at home and told him he would like to see him for a little while on a matter of mutual interest.

"If you can arrange to do it," said Mr. Thieme, "I could run down in my machine and meet you at the Commercial club right away."

Mr. Mulholland agreed to the plan and the two were soon engaged in animated conversation. After the matter in hand had been attended to, the question of the policies of Mr. Thieme as the new president of the Commercial club came up for consideration. Both men are deeply interested in matters concerning the welfare and progress of Fort Wayne, and when they finally parted it was found that they had not been talking merely a few minutes but that a couple of hours and more had passed. Then both of them returned to their homes.

The next morning, at the breakfast table, Mr. Thieme dropped his knife and fork with a start. He looked puzzled for a moment, and when questioned as to his conduct he said:

"Why, when I started downtown in my machine yesterday to see Mr. Mulholland, I picked up Will Shambaugh and took him along. I told him I was going to speak with Mr. Mulholland only a few minutes and would then come out and get him and go for a spin. Well, sir, do you know, I never thought of him again from that moment to this!"

Both men were deeply interested.

Mr. Shambaugh, when seen in connection with the matter, laughed heartily and assured the questioner that he was glad in any way to contribute to the further discussion of matters pertaining to the progress of Fort Wayne.

MEETING CLOSES WITH BIG FEAST

Rexall Men of State Discuss Topics of Interest.

TO SELECT A PLACE

With a banquet at 6 o'clock at the Wayne hotel, at which time the place for the next meeting will be selected, the annual convention of the Indiana Rexall club, which opened here Wednesday afternoon, will adjourn. So far no place for the 1913 meeting has been suggested. State President C. H. Heine, of this city, will preside as toastmaster at the feast and addresses will be delivered by Louis K. Liggett, of Boston, president of the United Drug Stores company; E. O. Geissler, of Detroit, and others, and a musical program will be rendered.

During the morning and afternoon discussions were continued by the delegates and many new features, which will undoubtedly prove of benefit to the trade, have been brought to the attention of the meeting. This afternoon was occupied wholly with discussions relating to cigars, soda water, photographic supplies, advertising, window displays, unusual side lines, salespeople and store arrangement. Among the late arrivals, who reached Fort Wayne this morning is Mr. Liggett, of Boston; Mr. Geissler, of Detroit; William Church, manager of the Chicago branch of the United Drug company, and William Howell, manager of the St. Louis branch of the company.

The officers of the association will remain unchanged until the regular November meeting. They are as follows: President, G. H. Heine, Fort Wayne; vice presidents, J. C. Gillis, Clinton; Frank E. Eble, Bluffton, and Thomas W. Lytle, Rushville; secretary-treasurer, Carl E. Nelson, of Hammond. Committee chairmen, W. G. Valentine, Terre Haute; Henry J. Huder, Indianapolis; W. P. Johnson, Greenfield; Frank Streibel, South Bend; A. Beuke, Fort Wayne; C. O. Prutzman, Muncie; A. R. Otis, Kendallville; P. X. Bohm, Evansville; Charles Bradley, Wabash; F. W. Meisner, Laporte, and Jerry Torrence, of Anderson.

GIRLS HAD "PLAYED HOOKEY."

Indianapolis Misses Feared to Return and Face Parents.

Indianapolis, May 9.—While parents, police and friends in motor cars and on foot searched the woods north of the city for Rosamond Van Camp, 12, and Catherine Bannister, 13, missing since yesterday afternoon, the girls ate breakfast at a suburban home and steeled themselves for their return home after a truant outing. Instead of going to school yesterday afternoon the girls went to the woods to pick flowers. A heavy rain storm late in the day drove them to the home of Oscar Kidwell, and Mrs. Kidwell gave them dry clothing and a bed for the night. One of the searching party found them at the Kidwell home, preparing to return to town and face their parents. They said they were afraid to ask to be taken home last night because they had "played hookey."

MANY TEAMS ENTER.

Lafayette, Ind., May 9.—Athletic Director Hugh Nicol, of Purdue, received a telegram today from J. T. Giles, chairman of the Indiana High School Athletic association, stating that twenty-four high school base ball teams had been entered in the annual state base ball tournament to be held here May 17 and 18, and that thirty-three track teams had entered the ninth annual state high school meet here on May 18. The total number of participants in both events will exceed 500.

CITY BREVITIES.

George Allen, stamp clerk at the Fort Wayne postoffice, has returned to work after a vacation of a month.

Dr. G. H. Hoffman, of Kewanee, Ill., was in the city Wednesday the guest of relatives and friends.

Mrs. A. D. Fox, of West Wayne street, has been called to Dexter, Mich., by the illness of an aunt.

Deputy Revenue Collector L. P. Sharp has gone for a three days' trip through northern Indiana.

Beginning Sunday, the Fort Wayne & Northern Indiana Traction company will provide hourly service to Robison park until the official opening of the amusement resort.

Miss Helen Harper is substituting as Latin teacher at the high school during the absence of Miss Sperry, of Ann Arbor, who has gone to her home for a short stay.

Moving pictures are to be used by the Central Georgia railroad, a Harriman line, to teach the elements of railroading to the more ignorant of the employes, many of whom are negroes and illiterate. It is believed that substituting pictures for text books, they can be taught to perform their duties more intelligently. Almost every detail of train operation can be shown effectively on the screen, and the pictures can be run over as many times as may be needed to teach the processes thoroughly.

ONLY HARD LUCK STORY, HE SAYS

Stoddard Did Not Care to Burden Court and Took Sentence.

MYSTERY IN THE CASE

"What is this all about? How about this case?" asked Judge Edward O'Rourke in the circuit court today after Ellsworth W. Stoddard, 59 years old, rather striking looking and a physician, had entered a plea of guilty to the charge of forgery.

Stoddard made no reply.

"The judge does not understand how a decent-looking sort of fellow like you would be up here on a charge of this kind preferred by his wife," suggested Prosecutor Harry H. Hilgemann.

"Oh, it's only a hard luck story and I guess the judge don't want to hear about it," said the prisoner, and nothing was left but to sentence him to from two to fourteen years in the prison at Michigan City.

More or less mystery surrounds the case and the prosecutor is in the dark. While Stoddard and his wife were living for a short time in Fort Wayne he signed the name of Robert W. Martin, of Indianapolis, to a note for $250 and obtained the face value of the bogus paper from his wife, Mattie C. Stoddard.

Later he left her and she employed Buren Webster, a detective, to investigate and he filed the affidavit. Stoddard went to Indianapolis and entered the practice there, and thought he was safe, but his wife saw him on the street, followed him until she located his room and then had him arrested.

Yesterday he notified the prosecutor that he wanted to plead guilty and the case was submitted this morning to Judge O'Rourke. He evidently did not care to say much about himself and the court officials did not insist.

Ordered Her to Get Out.

Hattie E. Beckman alleges in her complaint against George H. Beckman, in which she asks the courts to compel him to support her, that he ordered her out of the house, did not furnish a place for her to live and did not provide for her, compelling her to work for her own living. They were married June 14, 1910, and separated April 29 of this year.

Woman Asks Damages.

Sophia Yenni has filed suit demanding $1,500 damages of the Fort Wayne and Northern Indiana Traction company. She alleges that while attempting to board a Main street car near Portage avenue, the sign to go ahead was given before she had mounted the platform and that she was dragged for a distance of 600 feet. Phil B. Colerick is her attorney.

UP FOR CONFIRMATION.

Board of Public Works Will Hear Remonstrances Against Street Paving.

Resolutions will be up before the board of public works at its session tonight for paving Douglas avenue, Calhoun to McClellan; Monroe street, Berry to Washington; Canal street, Wayne to Nickel Plate tracks; High street, Gay to Winter; Weisser Park avenue, Wallace to Weiser park; Dawson street, Calhoun to Fairfield; Hoagland avenue, at Dawson crossing; Killea street, crossing of Harrison; Harrison street, Killea to Wildwood avenue; Wildwood avenue, Fairfield to Hoagland, and Wildwood avenue, Hoagland to Webster.

BRANCHES TO CONSOLIDATE.

If permission is granted by the grand encampment of Indiana it is likely that a consolidation of the two I. O. O. F. encampments in Fort Wayne will be effected. Resolutions endorsing this move are now pending in both Fort Wayne encampment, No. 152, and Summit City encampment, No. 16.

surface buoyed up by life preservers. He saw no women in the water.

Defends Mr. Ismay.

The conduct of J. Bruce Ismay, managing director of the International Mercantile Marine, after the casualty, was mentioned for the first time during the British investigation and was described by James Johnston, a steward, as having been exemplary.

Johnston, who left the ship in No. 2 emergency boat, was asked why there were not more women in the boat. He replied that they would not get into it. Mr. Ismay, the witness said, tried to induce the women to enter the dingy, but they refused, whereupon he escorted them to larger boats.

"He did everything an Englishman could do," Johnston added.

Johnston was asked why his boat had not returned to the scene of the disaster when its occupants heard cries for help. He replied that the officer in charge had asked the women if they should return, but the women decided against this course and the officer took their advice.

The attorney for the Seamen's and Firemen's union suggested that the evidence of some witnesses that the after part of the ship righted itself momentarily after the forward part had sunk justified his theory that if the bulkhead doors had not been opened the after part of the ship would have remained afloat.

Titled Passengers Objected.

The escape of Sir Cosmo and Lady Duff-Gordon in lifeboat No. 1, which was less than half filled, was inquired into this afternoon. Charles Hendry, a fireman of the Titanic and one of the crew in the boat in question, on being asked why he did not return to the scene of the disaster to try and rescue some of those in the water who were crying for help, said that he suggested that the boat should return, but Sir Cosmo objected on the ground that it would be dangerous. Lady Duff-Gordon agreed with her husband and the boat did not return.

Lord Mersey asked the witness: "You mean to tell me that because two passengers objected the rest of you kept your mouths shut and did not go to the rescue?"

Hendry replied, "That's right."

Witness said that Sir Cosmo gave each member of the crew of the boat $25, but he insisted that no arrangement to that effect had been made and the first he heard of a reward was after the lifeboats reached the Carpathia.

THEY WERE NOT "OFFICIAL."

But Bulletins Minimizing Accident Came From Steamship Offices.

Washington, May 9.—Senator Smith, of Michigan, as chairman of the senate committee investigating the Titanic disaster, today tried to get at the sources of the bulletins sent out on Monday, April 19, minimizing the accident and stating that all aboard the ship had been saved.

Questions along this line were put to M. L. Farrell, news editor of the ticker service of Dow, Jones Co., New York. An item at 10:30 Monday morning saying the Titanic was headed for Halifax was obtained from Vice President Franklin, of the White Star line, Farrell said. He identified other optimistic bulletins as having come from the White Star offices.

Farrell told of going to the White Star line offices Tuesday to see what the financial loss would be and to ascertain "how it happened reports came all day Monday from the White Star offices that proved subsequently to be false."

Mr. Farrell said he tried to see Mr. Franklin, but was met by an assistant.

"I asked him if he had received the news of the sinking yesterday," began Mr. Farrell. "He said not until about 6 o'clock Monday evening. I replied our reporters had been getting news from the White Star line offices all day Monday to the opposite effect. He replied 'that was not official. We received the telegram press dispatches from one place and another and just gave it out.'"

"You say he told you the official news of the disaster reached them about 6 or 6:30?"

"Yes."

"I ask particularly for at 7:15 that night a message was sent, it appears, from the White Star line to Representative Hughes showing the passengers were all saved."

Wire Pool Documents Destroyed in November, Says Witness.

STEEL CASE INQUIRY

New York, May 9.—The date of the destruction of the documents in the Jackson wire pool cases by officials of the American Steel and Wire company was fixed today as some time in November last by A. C. Cragin, an officer of the company.

He gave testimony to this effect at a continuance of the hearings before Commissioner Henry P. Brown in the government's suit to dissolve the United States Steel corporation. This evidence was regarded as of importance to the government's case inasmuch as the proceeding was filed on Oct. 26, but the question as to when the order to destroy the papers was given is still to be cleared up.

Cragin said today that Vice President Baackes, of the wire company, who gave the order, had visited him in Worcester, Mass., twice "either in October or November."

Jacob M. Dickinson, counsel for the government, said today that one of the main purposes of the present inquiry was to determine whether the papers were burned prior to October 26 last, the date the government's suit against the so-called steel trust was filed. The identity of the official of the American Steel and Wire company who ordered the papers destroyed, he said, was another point upon which the government wanted more light.

COURT DENIES INJUNCTION.

No Evidence of Intent to Destroy Books and Papers.

Trenton, N. J., May 9.—The application in the United States district court here for an injunction to restrain the United States Steel corporation and a number of its subsidiaries from destruction of books and papers which might be used in evidence in the suit of the government for the dissolution of the steel corporation was dismissed in a per curiam opinion filed this morning by Judges Gray, Buffington and McPherson, except as to the American Steel and Wire company, one of the steel corporation's subsidiary concerns.

The opinion, which is brief, after speaking of the application, says:

"No evidence is offered that such destruction is threatened, and it need hardly be said that evidence is essential before any man may be either accused or convicted of what would be in substance a criminal interference with the course of justice.

"The motion is supported almost wholly by the fact that after certain prosecution in the southern district of New York came to an end a number of papers belonging to the American Steel and Wire company that had been furnished by the company to the government for use in such prosecution and had been returned to its possession were destroyed by one of its officers.

"While we are satisfied that this destruction was without evil intent the fact remains that the destruction did take place and that is the reason why, so far as the Steel and Wire company is concerned, the restraining order previously granted should be continued."

The opinion then goes on to say that it is not shown that the other defendants were in any respect connected with its acts and that without evidence the court cannot grant the present petition. The petition is therefore refused except as to the Steel and Wire company, but the government is given permission to renew the petition if at any time counsel shall deem such a step as necessary or desirable.

SOCIALISTS TO NOMINATE.

The socialists of Allen county, at the next regular meeting to be held Tuesday, May 21, will nominate candidates for the various offices. The central body is at work on a ticket now.

The Woman's Bible class of the West Jefferson Street Church of Christ will meet Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Geo. F. Tibbetts, 1201 East Pontiac street.

RECTOR DECLARES FAITH IN KIMMEL

Dr. Gardner, of Austin, in Talk With "Man of Mystery."

MEMORY COMES BACK

Chicago, May 9.—Two acquaintances of George A. Kimmel, who knew him when he was a banker in Niles, Mich., are convinced the ex-convict who underwent a critical operation at the Robert Burns hospital a few days ago, will be able to re-establish his identity. They say he is able to converse on subjects which he could know nothing about if he is not the missing banker.

The Rev. Martin Gardner, rector of the St. Martin's church in Austin, was Kimmel's pastor in the Michigan town. Kimmel was an altar boy. After an hour's conversation the minister declared his faith in the man of mystery's contention that he is Kimmel.

"He even described the altar rail and told me who donated it," said Dr. Gardner.

Before the minister was admitted to the hospital his photograph was submitted to "Kimmel," and after a slight hesitation he identified it.

Mrs. Harper, a cousin of Kimmel on the mother's side, talked with him and was convinced. He told her family history, which, she says, no one outside of the family would know.

"I'm feeling easier and I'm getting my courage back," was "Kimmel's" answer to an inquiry regarding his condition. In the course of the conversation he recited a stanza of poetry from "Eben Holden" to strengthen his argument.

The eight lines, committed to memory years ago, came to him quite naturally. The substance of them was that prayer alone could not be sufficient. "Kimmel" used them as an argument against the views of a relative who had just visited him.

THE DEATHS.

BEITZELL.

Henry Beitzell, aged 46 years, died suddenly at 8 o'clock Wednesday evening at his home, 1001 Rivermet avenue, from heart failure. Mr. Beitzell worked all day at the Pennsylvania shops, where he was employed as a carpenter. He returned home apparently in his usual health and after attending to some work about the premises went to the house and complained of being ill. Death soon followed.

The deceased was born in Washington township. He is survived by the wife and three children—Mabel, Dorothy and Ralph, and two step-children, Elizabeth and Frank Hoffer. Two brothers and four sisters also survive. They are William and Louis Beitzell, Mrs. Charles Agster, Mrs. Rose Trowbridge, of Fort Wayne; Mrs. Henry Stratton, of Chicago, and Mrs. John McCulloch, of West Elizabeth, Pa. The deceased was a devout member of the Trinity Lutheran church.

Funeral services Saturday at 2 o'clock from the residence, Rev. Samuel Wagenhals officiating. Interment at Lindenwood.

DIED IN CHICAGO.

Mrs. H. M. Glessner, of this city, has been informed of the death of her brother, Harry D. Bossler, which occurred at Chicago last Monday. Funeral services were held today. The deceased was formerly a resident of Fort Wayne.

Next Sunday will occur the reopening exercises of the U. B. Church at Ossian. The sermons of the morning and evening will be preached by Dr. J. C. Kephart, of Dayton, O. Members of the denomination in this city will attend.

GOSSIP ON WIRE; CHILD MAY DIE

Woman Refuses to Give Up 'Phone to Permit Ambulance Call.

IT WAS "PARTY LINE"

Chicago, May 9.—A woman who lives in the neighborhood of Union avenue and West Thirty-seventh street yesterday carried on a pleasant incidental telephone conversation with another friend. They were using a party line when a man's voice cut in.

"Please let me have the line," he urged, "I want to call an ambulance to rush a child to the hospital.

"I'm using this line," the woman replied. Please don't interrupt."

"But, madam," protested the man on the other branch of the party line, "there's a little girl here with her leg torn off. I want to get an ambulance. Please let me have the wire."

"I'm talking now. Get off the line."

Make Ambulance of Truck.

The man attempted to find another telephone, but that occupied so many minutes that the child was placed in the truck which had run over her and taken to the Provident hospital.

Nora and Julia Crowley, 9 and 10 years old, respectively, were roller skating on the sidewalk when a heavy truck owned by Albert Pick & Co. and driven by Alfred Gehler rolled down the street. Approaching the corner, Gehler saw that he was running into a head-on collision with a passenger automobile. He swerved his big machine up on the sidewalk.

"I didn't see the children," he protested. "I didn't know anything about them until I heard them cry out under the machine."

Wheel Crushes Child's Leg.

One of the heavy wheels passed over Nora and her left leg was torn from her body. Julia was thrown aside by the wheels, but her right arm was caught in the driving chains. It was broken and mangled. Neighbors ran to aid the children. One of them ran into the house next to that of the Crowleys, 3650 Union avenue. He pulled down the receiver and found that the telephone was on a party line with some other house in the neighborhood. The women were talking.

At the Provident hospital it was said that there was barely a fragment of hope for Nora. Julia probably will recover.

Country Club Addition

In 5 and 10 acre tracts exclusively for Suburban Homes. Come out and see this beautiful proposition Saturday afternoon. I will be on the grounds from 1 till 6 o'clock, and Sunday from 2 till 6 o'clock. Drive out in your Auto to the Country Club, or take Interurban to Country Club or Glendale station. Board signs will point you to the addition.

Get Up On the High Spots

and note the panoramic view looking to the east and south. Note the landscape view overlooking the club house and golf grounds to the east. This Country club proposition is there to stay and you are assured beautiful and attractive surroundings for all time to come. You are assured already that some of our very prominent citizens will start to build beautiful homes in this beautiful district in June. Electric lights are already there. The telephone is there. Interurban service is there. Excellent auto roads to the city there. Extra fine water conditions there. Good water is good medicine. Pure air and golf lifted John D. Rockefeller out of the grave and gave to him a new lease on life. Stop for a minute and think this over, Mr. Business and Professional Man. Don't be selfish and think it over for yourself alone, but think it over for the benefit of your entire family. Pure air and exercise makes a big strong brainy man out of your boy. Invest a little more of your money in pure air and wholesome exercise close to nature and not quite so much in life insurance; you won't have to die first for your family to receive the benefits from your investment. If you wish to be strictly in the swim, you've got to get out away from smoke and dirt. The city is the place for shops and business; the suburbs the proper place for your homes. This condition exists everywhere following the development and growth of cities. Fort Wayne is now a real city and you may as well get the habit and keep pace with progress. You'll have to come to it.

Do You Know that you cannot find a better place to invest your money for profit than this very Country Club addition? Cannot you see at least one or two years in the future, that as our prominent citizens build beautiful homes in this close vicinity to the Country club your investment will jump two and three times its purchase price values? Do you know how large a tract 5 acres really is? Come out and let me show you. Do you know a $5,000 or $10,000 house looks top heavy on a little city lot? Put up a beautiful home or bungalow on a 5-acre tract and surround it with driveways and walks and shrubbery; then you not only have a house, but you have a beautiful estate, a fine place to entertain your friends, and in this Country Club proposition the additional feature and privilege to use the golf grounds for the small sum of $25 per year membership fee.

This Is Naturally

the one beautiful and attractive exclusive suburban home site proposition in the entire vicinity out of Fort Wayne any direction wherein all the necessary features are at hand to make it such. You will do very well indeed to look it over carefully and to not pass it up lightly without thought.

REMEMBER ALSO

that I have a beautiful grove with 10 acres close to the Country club that would divide nicely for two parties. Also a fine 10-acre tract with good set of buildings adjoining this Country Club addition. Don't forget my garden and poultry farm addition in 10-acre tracts, which is located beautifully just a little beyond my Country Club addition. The soil is extra good, and I have a bargain waiting for you there. I have some 1 and 2-acre tracts close to city car. Let me show you in my auto.

WARSAW SHERIFF HAS A BIG JOB

Will Turn 3,000 Bottles of Near Beer in Sewer—Stuff Taken in Officers' Raids.

Warsaw, Ind., May 9.—About 3,000 bottles of "near beer" and a large quantity of beer, wine and whisky will be destroyed by Sheriff Charles Kintzel as the result of a ruling made by Judge F. E. Bowser, of the Kosciusko circuit court, on Wednesday forenoon. The goods to be destroyed is a part of what was confiscated in raids conducted by Sheriff Kintzel and five deputies in the evening of Jan. 30. The liquor has been in the possession of Sheriff Kintzel ever since it was seized. The propiretors of the places raided were tried before Judge Wrigley, of Albion, about a week ago, and were fined and given suspended sentences of four months each.

Samples of all the goods taken in the raids were taken into court and Judge Bowser ruled that all goods containing more than one-half of one per cent. of alcohol should be destroyed. An examination of the chemist's analysis showed that only two of all of the varieties of "wet goods" seized by the officers contained less than one-half of one per cent. These were labeled "Homo" and "Tonica." Twenty-seven bottles of the former, containing .36 per cent. of alcohol each, were taken from Thorn's place and 188 bottles of the latter, containing .09 per cent. of alcohol each, were found at the rooms of Edward and Phoeby Hall. These were ordered returned, being the only goods not destroyed.

The goods to be destroyed is as follows: Fifteen barrels of "Nectarine," taken from Thorn's place; 14 cases of "Temperance Beer" and 180 bottles of unlabeled goods, taken from the Brunswick billiard and pool room; 17 quarts of pure rye whisky, one barrel of "Prima Tonica," one keg of brandy, one quart of blackberry brandy, one keg of blackberry cider, one keg of cherry cider, 36 quarts "Yo-Kolon," 188 bottles "Tonica," 60 pints Berghoff beer, and 18 pints of Nickel Plate beer. The chemist's analysis showed Berghoff beer to contain 4.26 per cent. of alcohol, Nickel Plate beer, 4.76 per cent. of alcohol and showed one variety of the so-called "Temperance Beer" to contain as high as 5 per cent. of alcohol.

MANY LABORERS EMPLOYED.

Will Work in the Sugar Beet Fields of Adams County.

Decatur, Ind., May 9.—Sixteen new laborers arrived from Chicago yesterday afternoon and will be assigned to work in the sugar beet fields of Adams county. Mr. Wagner is at Indianapolis and will bring what help he can secure there to the city in a day or two. Almost two hundred sugar beet growers have already been brought to the county all of whom have been given work and yet the supply has not equalled the demand.

OSSIAN NEWS.

Ossian, Ind., May 9.—A very pretty wedding took place Wednesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Vananda when Mrs. Vananda's sister, Miss Hazel Fox, was united in marriage to Mr. Karl Wilson. The ceremony was performed by Rev. A. S. Elzey. The S. P. C. Square club, of which Miss Fox is a member, was in attendance. The flower girls were the little Misses Wilma and Ailene Vananda and the maid of honor, Miss Mearle Albein, with Mr. Forest Wilson, brother of the groom, as best man. Dobby—Gran'pa, why don't you go to the moving picture show? They've got a hair-raising film?

Easy to Have Fair Skin and Pretty Hair

The hair and scalp can be kept immaculately clean and sweet by occasionally shampooing with a teaspoonful of canthrox dissolved in a cup of hot water. This quick-drying shampoo dissolves every particle of dust, dandruff and excess oil, and resores the former even color and brilliance to faded, lifeless hair. Because of its invigorating action, canthrox will encourage the growth of long, beautiful hair.

A highly satisfactory lotion for the skin is made by dissolving 4 ounces of spurmax in ½ pint witch hazel (or hot water,) then adding 2 teaspoonfuls glycerine. When applied to the skin it is invisible, and its regular use will banish the oily, "muddy," blotchy look so fatal to any complexion. When used on the dantiest skin it will impart an added richness not thought possible.

WILLIAM SCOTT HERRICK.

Warsaw, Ind., May 9.—William Scott Herrick was born October 26, 1847, in Allen county, Ind., near Fort Wayne. His parents were William R. and Ruth D. Herrick, and his boyhood was spent on the old homestead where he had lived since he was one year of age.

As a young man he taught school in the neighboring county, earning in this way the means to educate himself at Fort Wayne college, from which he graduated in the class of 1872 with degree of bachelor of arts. Here he met Miss Elizabeth Knouse, who also graduated from the same institution in the same class and whom he married March 18, 1873. After his marriage they moved to Kansas where, after teaching one year, he attended the University of Kansas at Lawrence, for a year, graduating with the degree of master of science in the class of 1875, and making a splendid record for excellent scholarship.

After graduation he moved from Kansas back to Indiana, locating first at Wheeling in Delaware county; then to Spencerville, DeKalb county, at each of which places he taught school for a year. Several years thereafter he resided at Wabash, where he taught school for two years, served four years as county surveyor and city civil engineer, then two years as principal of the high school at Lafountaine.

In 1887 the family moved to Allen county, where he was occupied as a farmer until 1908. In that year he moved to Warsaw, where he lived until his calling away on May 4, at the age of sixty-four and one-half years.

He leaves his wife, Elizabeth K., and four children—Marian E., living at Warsaw; Horace T., at Keokuk, Iowa; Mrs. Ruth Ashley, at Parnia, Col., and Homer K., at Oakfield, Cal. The youngest child died in 1899 at the age of eleven years. He joined the Methodist Episcopal church in his early young manhood and continued his membership without a break until his admission to membership in the church triumphant. When he moved from one place to another as his work required he was always careful to take with him his certificate of membership and this preserved an unbroken connection with the church.

His religious experience was not of an emotional nature but his convictions were the result of careful thought and, like Wesley, his motto was think and let think. When he reached a conclusion he was firmly established. He was not taken unawares when the final end came; to his wife and brother and neighbors he expressed himself as perfectly satisfied and there was no uncertain sound or note in his expression of confidence for the future.

Mrs. J. M. Henshaw, 235 S. 14th St., Richmond, had a severe pain in her back and other indications of kidney trouble. She heard of the curative qualities of Foley Kidney Pills and took them. She says: "I was entirely relieved from the backache, my kidney action improved, and I am now all over my trouble. I gladly recommend Foley Kidney Pills." Dreier Drug Co.

KIDNEY TROUBLES CAN BE AVOIDED.

You cannot afford to neglect the slightest kidney ailment—it's hazardous to do so.

The poisonous waste material must be separated from the blood and if the kidneys become weakened this is impossible.

That means a poisoned system.

That's why neglect means trouble—the ailment becomes chronic and results in Rheumatism or Bright's Disease.

NYAL'S Kidney Pills

Assist the kidneys in their function, strengthen them and prevent the ailment from becoming chronic. They cleanse the blood and increase the circulation and supply the proper nourishment to body tissues.

They are a kidney medicine—intended for that and nothing else.

Smashing the Old Machines.

This is developing into a great year for smashing the old political machines, and the smashing process is by no means confined to any one political party. Again and again in state conventions the crowd which has been running thing political so long that it can regard opposition as nothing short of sacrilege, heresy and treason, has been coming up in time-honored fashion, only to be knocked down in a manner wholly unprecedented but decidedly effective for all that.

Pennsylvania is affording perhaps the most complete and conspicuous example of the new trend of things. But little more than a week ago the republicans of that state utterly dethroned the rule of Senator Penrose and installed a new party viceroy, and now the Keystone state democrats have followed the example and wrested control from the organization which has been in control of democratic affairs in that state. It must be admitted that in the light of state political history Pennsylvania democrats will probably have difficulty in inducing the rest of the country to take their state political affairs seriously, but there is no discounting the militant spirit that moves the party in that overwhelmingly republican commonwealth.

The wreck of the political machines in Pennsylvania is but an example of what is happening in a smaller way, perhaps, in many other states, where the progressive tendency is obtaining a firm grip upon the work of shaping the party attitude, both among the democrats and the republicans. It means—temporarily at least—party rule and direction by a new crowd of fellows. Whether permanent public good is to come of it is another matter entirely, and depends wholly upon whether the factions now climbing into power are really any better than the old ones which they have succeeded in supplanting. At any rate, this is proving a great year for political upheavals, and the general public has seldom lost anything or suffered more by reason of a condition that brought an occasional change in politics.

A Wabash man is reported to have fled that city in fear when he found pinned to his door a notice warning him that if he did not get out, he would be lynched. We have no means of knowing the conditions surrounding this particular case, but this sort of thing smacks too strongly of whitecappism to be permitted to get a foothold in Northern Indiana.

With the 1913 meetings of the Travelers' Protective association and the Indiana Retail Piano Dealers' association already secured, Fort Wayne is making a good start in gathering in next year's crop of conventions. Let them all come.

Haven't registered yet? It's a little late, but there may yet be time.

STORY ABOUT A SALOON.

Oh, we're not altogether original—They have just uncovered a saloon deep not so awfully long-headed as inventors. in the ruins of Pompeii, and it is of such construction and detail that you'd almost know it if you met it.

Over the door is the word "Jollium." That's Latin, but we don't have to pound you on the head to make you appreciate how that title would fit the modern gin palace. Upon the walls are political notices, showing that there's no merit whatever to the notion that the mixing of beer and patriotism belongs exclusively to our own era of progress.

Then there's the "Jollium's" bar with holes in which to keep those "private brands" that you get with a wink from the barkeeper and a solid railing to hang on while talking politics or while remarking to the other Roman lushes that you are not afraid to stay away from home until any old late hour.

Upon the floor are little square boxes of marble that are puzzling the archeologists. But pshaw! Put sawdust in those boxes and you complete the tout ensemble of the "Jollium" of today. At an end of the bar is a low partition of marble evidently making a sort of tray and creating a scene so familiar one can almost see Romulus Roleus Raggeus siding up to cracked pretzels, rye bread and cold liver of old, old Pompeii's days of prosperity.

Pompeii's palace, temples, cloisters, terraces, monuments crumbled under the ashes and lava of the volcano, but her saloon survived. However, judging by the engraved pictures found in this excavated "Jollium" no decent volcano would go anywhere near a Pompeiian saloon.

THE PRESS DISCUSSES RULES OF THE CHURCH.

Aroused.

Indianapolis Sun: "One of the hopeful 'signs of the times' in church matters is the recognition by the great Methodist church that something is wrong with it. The hopefulness of this situation lies in the fact that the church is at last aroused to the necessity of certain reforms."

Laxity.

Providence Journal: "It is urged that the church should not give the impression of approving a greater laxity than was formerly permitted, but that is hardly a valid argument."

Ways of the World.

Washington Herald: "In making the recommendation they did the church dignitaries showed themselves to be not only christian gentlemen, but men who understand the ways of the world."

Christian Duty.

Ohio State Journal: "The pleasures and forms of amusement are the incidents to progress in invention, comfort, opportunity, leisure, wealth. These are all developed under natural law, and, of course, should widen and not narrow the field of christian duty."

Good Morals.

Philadelphia Ledger: "Men and women of the twentieth century are even less inclined than their forbears to brook any laws, secular or religious, that appear to them ill-advised curtailments of personal privilege in matters not intrinsically repugnant to good morals."

Conscience.

Cleveland News: "When they propose to abandon an obsolete rule and leave these things to the conscience of the individual the bishops are wise. They are the wisest when they acknowledge that men and women must play and must find the opportunity where they can."

Twentieth Century.

Buffalo Curier: "The bishops see the futility of striving to preserve into the twentieth century the common rules of personal conduct acknowledged in the eighteenth."

Discipline.

Indianapolis Star: "Should the rule be banished from the Book of Discipline there will be little, if any, more indulgence in the now forbidden amusements than is to be found at present."

GOOD-BY, GERM-LADEN ROLLER TOWEL.

Adieu the Roller Towel!

The hospital and health committee of the board of supervisors of San Francisco, Cal., recently recommended for passage an ordinance forbidding the use of this singularly-smudged cloth of the populace.

The ordinance forbids the hanging of a common towel anywhere and everywhere—hotels, restaurants, cafes, saloons, public buildings and all other places.

The ordinance was drafted by Supervisor A. H. Giannini, a physician, who believes that the common towel is a conservator of germs and bacilli.

The maintenance of the common towel will be considered a misdemeanor hereafter in San Francisco, to be followed by prosecution and punishment.

RISING HOURS DIVORCE ISSUE

Chicago Husband Asserts Wife Spends Too Much Time in Bed.

ANSWERS HER BILL

Chicago, May 9.—An "insatiable love of gayety" is atributed to Mrs. Florence W. Overshiner in the answer to her bill for divorce filed and read in court by lawyers for Ellsworth B. Overshiner, former president of the Swedish-American Telephone company, yesterday afternoon.

Mr. Overshiner charges that his wife remained in bed until late hours of the morning, then arose and went downtown to spend the remainder of the day shopping.

The telephone corporation head added that the reason his wife had left him was that he had lost much of his money through business reverses and that she refused to continue to live with him when he was unable to support her in the style she demanded.

In her original charges Mrs. Overshiner accused her husband of entertaining chorus girls at late dinners and that on thirteen different occasions he had beaten her. The separation came in April, shortly after Overshiner's financial losses, to which he referred in his answer.

Mrs. Overshiner said that her husband's income was about $50,000 a year. He asserts, however, that his income now is practically nothing and that his wife has more property than he has. Both ask for the custody of their 6-year-old son, Channing. Pending a settlement of the case Judge McDonald decided that the boy should take turns living with them, spending a week with one and the next with the other.

What the Sentinel Had to Say About Persons and Events Twenty-Five Years Ago.

Forty people are on the program for Fred Graffe's minstrels.

Mayor C. F. Muhler has filed his bond of $5,000 with City Clerk Loag. Mr. A. C. Trentman and H. C. Graffe are his sureties. Mr. Muhler will instruct all the day and night officers to arrest all tramps coming into the city.

The Business Men's exchange, through its committee, of which Captain J. B. White is chairman, will ask the council to sink two wells, one at the pumping house and one at McCulloch park. The well at the pumping station would give a water supply if gas is not discovered. The other could be converted into a public fountain. Hon. Charles McCulloch subscribed the sum of $1,000 to the Auburn Church Furniture company at the meeting of the exchange last night. Col. D. N. Foster has charge of the Bickford project.

Dr. Greenawalt went to Bryan, Ohio, this morning on a business trip. He will be gone a few days.

Rev. M. C. Cooper will organize a mission Sabbath school in the east end of the city.

Colonel D. N. Foster was at Lafayette yesterday looking after his business interests there.

The election of representatives to the state convention of traveling men at Indianapolis is as follows: Delegates, H. V. Rout, Seymour Smith and R. D. Hudgel; alternates, R. W. T. DeWald, G. B. Saylor and E. G. Smedley.

The Wabash company still continues to enlarge the shops at Butler and many carloads of material have been unloaded this week.

The cantata, "David," will be given this evening by a chorus of fifty voices at the Berry street Methodist Episcopal church.

Charles F. Pfeiffer has effected a large sale of tickets for the grand organ recital at the English Lutheran church Thursday evening.

The joint committee on Memorial day will meet Thursday evening at the office of Comrade J. C. Peltier. The full committee of both posts of the G. A. R. is requested to be present.

Drs. McCaskey and Brown left for Indianapolis this morning.

The Masonic temple is to be greatly improved and beautified this summer.

CONVICT FINDS GEMS.

Valuables Were Lost By Visitor in Prison Yard.

Marquette, Mich., May 9.—Two diamond rings, one a big solitaire, the other two stones, all valued at $1,000, were returned to Mrs. Al. J. Straus, of Cincinnati, by Neil Sinclair, a life prisoner from Chippewa county, who picked them up in a chamois bag in the prison yard.

Mrs. Straus first missed the rings a few nights before, and the hotel where she was staying has been in a furor ever since in a vain effort to get a trace of them. Mrs. Straus was positive that she had left them in a dresser when she changed rooms.

She had visited the prison in the afternoon, but felt certain that she had left the rings in the hotel. It now appears that she lost the chamois bag containing them as she walked through the prison yard and that it was kicked about by the other convicts until it was picked up by Sinclair.

Mrs. Straus was overjoyed when informed of the finding of the rings.

WARSAW STREET PAVING.

Warsaw, Ind., May 9.—Six contractors filed bids this week on the two and a half miles of street paving to be done in this city during the coming summer. The bidding was closer than is usually the case. The improvements are estimated to cost around $70,000.

TIRED OF PLAYING TRUANT.

One Night Brought Two Girls Home; Third Still Missing.

New York, May 9.—Veronica Krekzunas, of 1538 Minford place, the Bronx, and Jessie Wanser, of 1475 Hoe avenue, each 12 years old, for whom alarms were sent out when they and 13-year-old Anna Fitzpatrick, of 1426 Minford place, failed to return from school, have returned to their homes. They said they had meant to run away, fearful of facing their parents after having played truant from school for a week.

They slept in a hallway one night, they said, but became so hungry in the morning that they decided to risk their parents' anger and return home. The children said Anna had refused to follow their example, however, saying that she would go to the home of an aunt in Somerville, N. J.

Mrs. Fitzpatrick said she believed her daughter had done this, and that she was not much worried about her. She said Anna had enough money with her to pay her fare, and that she had made the trip alone before, and consequently knew how to reach her aunt's home.

A New Yellow Peril

Drawn for Lehman's Clothing House.

News Item: A consular report calls attention to the fact that the Japanese have imported apple trees from the United States, but that, although they raise the fruit successfully, they don't really know what to do with it. An international friendship established on apple pie, on the genuine apple pie, with crisp crust and spicy, juicy interior, might be durable and lasting. But we cannot spare many cooks.

Why not export a few newlywed cooks and thereby wreak our vengeance on the Japs for their recent interference with our coast defenses?

It is all right to experiment on others but for yourself you want to be absolutely sure you have the best. You can be sure about your clothes by making this quality store the source of your supplies.

CLASS OF EIGHT ARE GRADUATES

Commencement Exercises of St. Peter's Catholic Schools Held Wednesday Night.

A LARGE AUDIENCE

The commencement exercises of the St. Peter's Catholic schools held Wednesday evening at the parish school hall were attended by a large audience, taxing the capacity of the hall, and were interesting throughout, the program given being excellent in all its features. There were eight graduates. The Misses Colette Thiele, Frances Wyss and Anna Kinder, the three young ladies of the class gave the salutatory "Launching Our Bark," while the valedictory honors were given to the five young men of the class, George Jansen, Valentine Berg, Justin Klingenberger, Robert Nehrer and Frederic Mayer, who spoke on the class motto, "Ora et Labora," (Prayer and Labor).

One of the features of the evening was the presentation of a five-act comedy drama, "The Cost of a Promise," which was splendidly rendered. The leading role was enacted by Miss Colette Thiele, the others taking prominent parts being: Anna Kinder, Frances Wyss, Esther Hodges, Edith Rupp, Elsie Nessenstein, Loretta Christen, Cecilia Jaeger, Marcella Rohyans, Frances Burke, Helen Suelzer and Justin Klingenberger. The presentation of the diplomas and the address to the class was made by Rev. Charles H. Thiele, the rector of the parish. He referred to the class motto, "Prayer and Labor," and reviewed briefly the work of the children during the years of study in the parochial school and paid tribute to the parents who had recognized the superior advantages of the parochial school inasmuch as the boys and girls were afforded not only a training in the secular branches of study but in their religious duties as well.

The stage was beautifully decorated with flowers, calla lilies and white carnations being prominent. Among the clergy present were: Rev. Michael Aichinger, the assistant priest at the St. Pter's church; Rev. Simon M. Yenn, diocesan chancellor; Rev. H. F. Joseph Kroll, pastor of St. Paul's; Rev. Emanuel J. Wrobel, pastor of St. Hyacinth's church; Rev. Paul A. Welch, assistant at St. Patrick's; Rev. Norbert Felden, pastor of St. Rose church, Monroeville.

THEY GO BACK TO OLD CHILLICOTHE

Framers of New Ohio Constitution Move to Historic Town.

OLD LAW MADE THERE

Chillicothe, O., May 9.—Ohio's constitution makers today turned back to the spot where the first charter laws of the state were drafted 110 years ago. To pay homage to the makers of the state's first history, delegates, employes and attaches of the fourth constitutional convenion moved in a body from Columbus to this city. Ohio's first capital, to hold at least a part of the present session on the site where many of the first laws of the state were framed.

The court room in Ross county court house where the session was held occupies the ground where the first state house stood. Many of its furnishings are scarcely less historic than its location.

The long oak table at which President Bigelow presided is the same table on which the first constitution of the state was signed. Above the table hung the big bell which swung in the tower of the first state house. It has been in the relic room of the present capital for fifty years but was brought here today. On the walls of the court room hung pictures of the first governors and many members of the first constitutional convention. The original records of the first convention were also on display.

No business was expected of the delegates. Instead, the day was to be spent in isiting the places where transpired events, the effects of which are felt in the laws of the state. The St. Clair house, where the then Governor St. Clair escaped from a mob led by Michael Baldwin, member of the first constitutional convention, was visited. Gov. St. Clair's escape was made with the aid of Thomas Worthington and a member of the territorial congress. Visits also were made to the Clinton house, where British officers were paroled after the capture at Perry's victory on Lake Erie, to the cemetery hill, the burial place of four governors, including Gov. Tiffin, the first state executive. Cook's house, built in 1800, with the first iron bars brought to the state and to the little mill site where flour was first made in the sate. The first Ohio constitutional convention met Nov. 1, 1802, and finished its work on the 29th day of the same month. Edward Tiffin was president and Thomas Scott secretary. There were thirty-four members coming from Adams, Belmont, Clermont, Fairfield, Hamilton, Jefferson, Ross, Trumbull, and Washington. This city remained the state capital from 1802 until 1810 and again from 1812 to 1816. The old state house stood until 1852, when it was torn down. In 1800 Chillicothe was the capital of the northwest territory.

It Cost Elmer Hart Fifteen Dollars and Ten Days to Try to Collect.

CITY COURT DOCKET

Elmer Hart, who lives in the southern part of the city, would better have let a plowing bill of $1.50 against George Schlaudroff go as he tried to collect it with his fists, feet and a chair and didn't get his money.

However, he did get ten days in jail and a fine of $5 and costs, amounting to $15, and he would have gotten more if Judge Mungovan had not known that he is a man of family with several small children to support.

He went over to Schlaudroff's house to collect the money and when he was told he could not get it because he plowed the lot when it was too wet he knocked his creditor down and trampled his face for him and was about to brain him with a chair when the neighbors interfered.

The Other Cases.

Herman Meyers, charged with assault and battery on Lizzie Johnson, was fined $1 and costs. He lives on Buchanan street and it is said was out threatening yesterday that he would kill the woman.

Tom Cochran and Pat Mullen were each fined $5 and costs for drunkenness.

William Parker and Chester Salsula, two boys of fourteen from Chicago were picked up by the Pennsylvania police for train climbing and placed in charge of the probation officer.

Robert Fleming was held on a charge of assault and battery and will be taken by Chief of Police Abbott tomorrow to Mansfield, O., where he will be turned over to the prison authorities to serve an unexpired term for highway robbery.

Harry Sterner and Charles Harvey, plain drunks, were let go.

Jim Daugherty had a bad case of "snakes" and was sent to jail for a day or two on a charge of public intoxication.

MILITIA TO GET REVOLVERS.

Washington, May 9.—The Indiana militia will be interested in the following statement issued by the war department:

"The ordnance department of the army announces that it will be able to begin the distribution of automatic 45-caliber revolvers, model of 1911, to the organized militia of the states about Dec. 1, 1912.

"In the meantime, the ordnance department can supply to each state not to exceed twenty revolvers with extra magazines, holsters and ammunition, charging them to the quota of the state through the division of militia affairs, or the revolvers may be sold to the state for cash under the provisions of the law. The price of the new firearms is $14.75."

GELLER IS RE-ELECTED.

W. F. Geller, of this city, has been re-elected treasurer of the Indiana Association of Master Bakers. George M. Haffner, of this city, spoke Wednesday night at the annual meeting of the organization, at Indianapolis, on "Co-operation Plan in the Baking Business" and Mr. Geller talked on the subject, "A Baker in Indiana Over Thirty Years."

Askew, Mrs. J. B. Harper and Mrs. C. Martz.

Work Progressing.

Work on the new building is progressing rapidly and although a little delay was experienced when the association decided to take over the Moderwell homestead directly west of the building site, the contractors are making up as much time as possible. The date set for completing the building is December 1, but may be a trifle later than that time.

SOCIETY

Miss Ignota White, of Washington boulevard west, gave a luncheon bridge of very pretty appointment today at 1 o'clock with Miss Bonnie Auger as the honor guest and ten intimate friends of Miss Auger forming the rest of the party. The house was trimmed with flowers, pink being the prevailing color. The luncheon table was decorated with candelabra of pink candles and pink carnations. Pink heart shaped candies was a feature of the menu, in which the color of pink appeared in the dessert course. Miss Auger was given a book of "wedding bells," in which each guest wrote a message for the future. Tomorrow Miss White will give a luncheon in honor of Miss Emel Verweire, who is to be a bride of next month.

Mrs. John Marin, of New York, and Mrs. E. F. Lloyd, of Detroit, were guests this afternoon of Mrs. W. H. Shambaugh, who invited a few of their friends to a game of bridge. Delicious refreshments were served after the game.

There will be a meeting of the Morning Musical society tomorrow morning in Elks hall. Later in the month the society will give a guest afternoon at which the program will consist of numbers requested by members.

Miss Charlotte Sites has returned from a seven weeks' visit at eastern points. During the time Miss Sites visited her sister, a student at Smith college, Northampton, Mass., and the rest of the time she spent in New York, Boston and Washington.

The Teopa-O-Telleo club met last evening with Miss Eulalie Benningin, of Washington boulevard east, and arranged to give a dance at Mulqueen's hall on Friday, May 24. On Sunday the club will go to Bluffton and will invite friends of other clubs there to join them when the dance is given here.

Mrs. F. E. McEntaffer, who has been visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Eggeman, has returned to Frankfort, but will return shortly to live as Mr. McEntaffer has decided to make Fort Wayne his headquarters instead of their present home. Mr. and Mrs. McEntaffer have rented a house in West Suttenfield street.

Mrs. Emily Woodworth is going to Marquette, Mich., next Monday and expects to spend the summer there with her son. Mrs. Woodworth will be accompanied to Marquette by her nephew, Carl Woodworth, who will remain there for a two weeks' visit before he returns to this city. The Woodworth home isto be entirely dismantled during Mr. Woodworth's absence.

Mr. and Mrs. C. G. Fox entertained a company of young folks last evening at a farewell party in honor of Joseph Balfour, who left yesterday for California to spend the summer with his parents. Card games were the amusement and light refreshments were served afterwards. The guests accompanied Mr. Balfour to the station and sent him off with many good wishes.

FAIREST DAUGHTERS OF THE SOUTHLAND ANSWER CALL OF DUTY; NOW GREET VETERANS IN GRAY AT ANNUAL REUNION.

The beauty of the south has been called to act sponsor for the annual reunion of the United Confederate Veterans' reunion, now in progress at Macon, Ga. And one and all of the girls have answered "Here" to the call.

The pretty sponsors accompany their respective state delegations of veterans and sons of veterans, and are led by Miss Cora Mallory, of Pensacola, Fla., who has been appointed by Commander-in-Chief C. Irvine Walker, sponsor in chief for the south to the confederate reunion. Her first assistant will be Miss Blanche Nisbet, of Macon, Ga.

The army of northern Virginia department will bow to the smiles of Miss Orie Walker, of Charleston, S. C. The North Carolina division has Miss Flora Bryan, of Charlotte, N. C. The sponsor for the Tennessee veterans will be Mrs. Casey Young Campbell, of Memphis. Missouri boys in gray have selected Miss Emily Todhunter, of Lexington, Mo.

Thus, the chivalry and beauty of the entire south are represented in the officers and men of the "thin gray line," the sons and daughters of veterans and the sponsorial appointees of the various departments and divisions.

SOME SUMMER FROCKS FOR WEE WOMEN.

The wise mother, if she can possibly so arrange her time, has her sewing done before the sultry days of summer arrive. In these days of inexpensive materials she should make up any number of washable frocks for her little daughters.

A very attractive dress for wear on "best" occasions is of butcher linen, the blouse and skirt being put together with stitching at the waistline.

The skirt is round, with a lap seam down the left side of the front. The appearance of opening is given this seam by three crochet buttons. The same effect is reproduced at the real opening in the back.

The blouse is a kimona shape, the front of it being hand worked with a daisy pattern. The neck is round, finished with hand worked scallop. The sleeves are loose and finish half way down the forearm.

For a little girl of 7 a sensible dress, permitting freedom to neck and arms on the hot days, is of ecru linen trimmed with bands of dark brown in the Grecian key pattern.

The one-piece effect is secured in this little dress by the panel that is set on the front. This has bands of the Grecian embroidery outlining it from the shoulders. The skirt is side pleated and goes into a belt.

The blouse is kimona shaped with wide, short, kimona sleeves. Above the broad hem on the skirt the embroidery again appears, around the sleeves, and the effect of a sailor collar is given by having it about the square neck.

Black and white striped lawn, trimmed with bands of red silk which in turn is dotted with white, is formed into a very pretty dress for a little girl of 8. The band is put around the blouse at the end of the yoke, at the belt and on the sleeves. The upper part of the yoke and sleeves are of kimona form, and below the silken band the blouse is pulled into a belt.

Tiny Vs of red silk are set in the shoulder seams and from the collar down into the yoke. These Vs in turn are piped with red silk and the piping on the shoulder goes on to meet the dotted silk band which finishes the sleeve.

The skirt has a box pleat in front and from this side pleats turn backward to meet in the back. This gives the little girl's skirt the childish fulness necessary for freedom of action.

SEAT SALE FOR ROMANY MAID.

The sale of seats to the public for the coming three nights' production of J. B. Archer's comic opera, The Romany Maid, to be given by a local cast of principals and chorus, will open tomorrow at 10 o'clock at the Majestic theater. The opening night will be next Tuesday. Members of the Apollo club were given opportunity to reserve seats today. The first stage rehearsal was held at the theater last evening.

FASHION FRIVOLS.

Lace trimmed and lace covered parasols are among the novelties and lace covered fans are coming in again.

Large draped hats of changeable silk have a single rose of some bright hue as the only trimming.

Red is in pronounced evidence just now, but more particularly in millinery, parasols, belts and wrist bags than in the costume itself.

Pique is a material that is smart and is used considerably for general wear costumes and trimmings.

With white linen, pique, serge or satin skirts the very thin handkerchief linen models of waists are to be made up with tucks. Val or fine Irish insertion, fine insertion embroidered or handiwork that will put a few delicate motifs as for a yoke, collar and cuffs with fine embroidery cotton in open and closed designs.

An entirely new material that is seen in the best models and to be used by the exclusive dressmakers, is a material called altocloth. It is all cotton, in a loose, open weave, resembling a fine woolen homespun; only more sheer.

Black handles on highly colored parasols are popular and hand carving is favored for the more expensive ones.

If a long chiffon veil is worn American Beauty is the color.

COMMUNE WITH NATURE.

If you are city bred and have never learned really to know Nature, go to the woods and study her there and learn to know and love her. If your youthful days were spent with her but you have since become so absorbed with city life and business cares or household duties that you have grown out of touch with Nature, go to the woods and renew your friendship with ever changing, ever beautiful and ever wonderful Mother Nature.

Go to forget your cares, go to learn new wonders, go to be comforted, go to be calmed, go for recreation, go for relaxation, go for rest, go for peace. Nature is calling you! Go!

A little caution here—choose very wisely your companion for this expedition. Don't invite to accompany you the youth whose principal interest in life is the next grand football game. Neither ask the girl who will chatter incessantly of her new spring wardrope. Choose a sympathetic companion, one who will appreciate the charms of Nature as deeply as you do, one who feels a sense of awe, a desire for silence and a feeling of solemnity stealing over him as he enters "the woodland wild." Choose some one who can witness in appreciative silence the wonders of Nature, and who will feel awed and humble when listening to her voice. If you cannot find a companion of this sort, far getter go alone.

There is in the woods an indescribable charm and a restful solitude that is not solitude at all but close companionship with Nature. If you have experienced this, you have felt indeed life's most restful, 'most enobling, most uplifting and most lasting joy. Every time you go Mother Nature will sing a wonderful song and tell a more wonderful tale.

Is there any greater pleasure at this season of the year than a walk through the woods? When you feel yourself "losing your grip," worrying about things that cannot be altered, and becoming despondent; when your thoughts are gliding into morbid channels, when you have "overdone" yourself in the line of brain work, what is more restful on a Saturday or Sunday afternoon than to board a train or trolley for one of the many beautiful stretches of woodland in the vicinity of your city?

The best cure known for a case of "nerves" is to get out into the open to walk and commune with Nature! The combined effect of fresh air, walking and the soothing influence of Nature will produce a wonderful result in toning up the system, shaking off gloomy thoughts and forebodings, filling the mind with cheerful, happy thoughts and restoring complete mental power and control. You go out into the woods a victim of the blues; you return two hours later a different creature. The secret rests, like many another, with Mother Nature. After a trip of this sort you feel "fit" and strong enough to cope with the most difficult problems that may come to you for solution during the coming week.

Health in the Woods.

Especially at this season of the year, when your system is debilitated by the strain of hard work during a long, severe winter, when your lungs are crying out for pure, fresh air, and your tired brain craves rest and calm and peace, especially now should you allow yourself frequent half holidays of this sort for relaxation. While being the cheapest kind of amusement in existence, it is, at the same time the most beneficial.

Then, too, Nature is at her best now. She is "fresh and young and new," and full of promise. What lessons of hope and courage, and cheer, and faith, do the springing buds, the returning birds, the awakening flowers tell us.

Go to the woods and feel there the life that is "pulsing, coursing, throbbing, beating," actually feel the very presence of the season of promise.

Don't merely see and hear and breathe in the beauty, but feel it in an inexpressible way! The splendor, the grandeur, the glory of it all will bring you health and inspiration and increase your capacity for better work during the coming week.

Go to the woods and find out for yourself if these words are true.

SINGLETON TO LEAVE.

Recruiting Officer Here is to Again Serve On Sea.

Chief Quartermaster A. H. Singleton, who has been in charge of the local navy recruiting station in the federal building for the last twenty-two months, will again go to sea in the near future. He will be succeeded here by T. N. Miller, of Indianapolis, who has been in the navy for nine years, the greater portion of which time was spent as first class electrician aboard a submarine vessel. Mr. Singleton's title of chief-quartermaster is the highest that can be attained by recruits untilthey are made officers, and it is understood that Mr. Singleton is to be advanced when he again enters active service aboard ship.

Russel G. Holmes, of Angola, has enlisted in the local navy recruiting station as an apprentice seaman. He will be sent to the training quarters at Chicago.

A New Face Without Surgical Skin Peeling

"I do not approve of the surgical operation of face peeling," says Julia Orff. "It's too radical, too often dangerous. There's a better way of removing offensive complexions and one that is entirely safe and rational. Ordinary mercolized wax causes the devitalized scarf skin to come off, but gradually and gently. Unlike the surgical process, the skin is not forcibly taken off in big pieces all at once, but almost invisible flaky particles are absorbed by the wax, and from ten days to two weeks are required to complete the transformation. There's no pain, no discomfort.

"Nature renews complexions the same way, shedding tiny cutaneous scales day by day. But deficient circulation, or other abnormal condition, may interfere with the shedding—a 'bad complexion' results. Then mercolized wax assists Nature by hastening the removal of the aged, faded or discolored top skin. Thus only the lively, young, healthy-hued skin is in evidence, as in robust girlhood. This is why mercolized wax produces the indescribable beauty of ever-renewing youth. The wax is put on at night like cold cream, and washed off in the morning. You can procure it at any druggist's; an ounce is sufficient."

Remarkable Success of These Talented Physicians in the Treatment of Chronic Diseases

OFFER THEIR SERVICES FREE OF CHARGE

The Associated Doctors, licensed by the state of Indiana for the treatment of deformities and all nervous and chronic diseases of men, women and children, offer to all who call on this trip, consultation, examination, advice free, making no charge whatever, except the cost of medicine. All that is asked in return for these valuable services is that every person treated will state the result obtained to their friends and thus prove to the sick and afflicted in every city and locality, that at last treatments have been discovered that are reasonably sure and certain in their effect.

These doctors are considered by many former patients among America's leading stomach and nerve specialists and are experts in the treatment of chronic diseases and so great and wonderful have been their results that in many cases it is hard indeed to find the dividing line between skill and miracle.

Diseases of the stomach, intestines, liver, blood, skin, granulated eyelids, nerves, heart, spleen, kidneys, or bladder, rheumatism, dropsy, sciatica, diabetes, bed-wetting, leg ulcers, weak lungs and those afflicted with long-standing, deep-seated, chronic diseases, that have baffled the skill of the family physician, should not fail to call.

According to their system no more operations for appendicitis, gall-stones, tumors, goiter or certain forms of cancer. They were among the first in America to earn the name of the "Bloodless" Surgeons, by doing away with knife, with blood and with all pain in the successful treatment of these dangerous diseases.

If you have kidney or bladder troubles bring a two-ounce bottle of your urine for chemical analysis and microscopic examination.

Deafness often has been cured in sixty days.

No matter what your ailment may be, no matter what others may have told you, no matter what experience you may have had with other physicians, it will be to your advantage to see them at once. Have it forever settled in your mind. If your case is incurable they will give you such advice as may relieve and stay the disease. Do not put off this duty you owe yourself or friends or relatives who are suffering because of your sickness, as a visit this time costs you nothing.

Remember, this free offer is for three days only.

Married ladies must come with their husbands and minors with their parents.

PICKS FLAWS IN INSPECTION LAW

Michigan Woman Declares Federal Meat Inspection Faulty.

TAFFY IN LARD CAN

Washington, May 9.—The Rev. Caroline Bartlett Crane, of Michigan, told the house committee on expenditures in the agricultural department yesterday in her opinion the meat inspection law had been vitiated by regulations made by the bureau of animal industry in the department of agriculture. Mrs. Crane appeared in support of the resolution of Representative Nelson, of Wisconsin, which asks for a congressional inquiry into the administration of the meat inspection law. The witness resented the suggestion that she charged a conspiracy between the beef trust and the department of agriculture. Her only contention was that under the regulations it was possible for the packers to defraud the people and that these same regulations reduced the protection to the public afforded by the law.

"Here is an object lesson," said Mrs. Crane, producing a lard can embellished with the label of a well known packing house.

Attached to the label was the legend, "inspected by the United States department of agriculture and passed." Inside the lard can was the government seal. Quickly breaking the seal Mrs. Crane exhibited the "lard." It proved to be a couple of pounds of brown taffy done up in tissue paper.

When the laughter had subsided Mrs. Crane passed the candy around and remarked that her object lesson showed how easy it would be to pass a can of lard to the consumer with the government's guarantee on the label, although it meant absolutely nothing.

QUIET IN NEWSPAPER STRIKE.

Chicago Offices Said to Be Working With Practically Full Crews.

Chicago, May 9.—Quiet reigned in the newspaper strike today and papers were sold under police guard in practically every part of the city. A number of stereotypers who went out on a sympathetic strike after the pressmen walked out, applied for reinstatement on two afternoon papers and it is expected that others will follow their example in the near future. All the newspapers have practically full crews of pressmen and stereotypers at work and more editions were published today than at any time since the beginning of the strike. John O'Neill, a street car conductor, was arrested for taking newspapers from the hands of passengers boarding his car, but was later allowed to go with a warning. Several newsboys were arrested for going through a west side elevated train grabbing newspapers out of the hands of passengers.

LOGANSPORT WANTS CONVENTION.

Movement to Secure State Meet of Indiana Sunday Schools.

Logansport, Ind., May 9.—The Logansport Sunday School association held a meeting last evening in the assembly room of the high school building and launched a movement to bring the 1913 state Sunday school convention to this city. The Logansport commercial club will co-operate in the movement. E. J. Humpe, of Kokomo, was present and delivered an address.

Voters Refuse to Make Recall the Instrument of Machine Politicians.

Upper Picture is Miss Helen Carlisle. The lower is her mother, Mrs. Eleanor Carlisle.

Berkeley, Cal., May 9.—When the voters of Berkeley recently refused to recall three members of the school board they proved the fallacy of the statement that the recall can be used to remove honest officials upon flimsy pretext.

They further proved that the people, as a whole, including the women, who voted at this election, are competent to vote intelligently and justly.

When Berkeley elected J. Sitt Wilson and a socialist government the old machine gang that had ruled Berkeley politics immediately sought a means to gain revenge. They thought they had found it when Eleanor Carlisle, John I. Wilson, councilman and school director, and Herman Stern ousted Frank E. Bunker, school superintendent.

Bunker, minus a $4,000 a year job, sided with the old gang and all whooped it up for recall. The directors who had fired Bunker contended that inasmuch as they were given the authority over the schools they had acted in the way they thought best. The recallers went at it in true political fashion, seeking to cloud the real issue by half a dozen outside issues.

The scheme didn't work. The people saw through the political tricks and when the election was over the ones who had sought revenge by trying to discredit the socialist administration were swamped under by an enormous majority.

The people refused absolutely to make the recall the instrument of politicians.

One of the issues in the fight was Mrs. Annie Little Barry's opposition of Mrs. Eleanor Carlisle to hold her position on the school board. Both were prominent among the women of Berkeley and both used their personal friendship to gather votes.

In the middle of the campaign Mrs. Carlisle was taken ill and removed to the hospital for an operation. Mrs. Carlisle's daughter, Helen, took her mother's place in the campaign, and it was her clear and forceful presentation of the real issues that helped the people decide.

And since the defeat of the recallers everybody is calling Helen Carlisle the heroine of the recall election.

AT THE MAJESTIC.

BIG MATINEE SATURDAY.

One of the most important adjuncts to the success of a drama is the selection of the cast to presen it, and unusual care was exercised by Henry W. Savage in choosing men and women to represent the many and diverse characters in "Madame X," which he will offer at the Majestic theater matinee and night, Saturday, May 18. As a result of his judgment, the critics have declared the cast to be one of the most notable whic hhas been assembled in years. The stirring strength of the Bisson drama is capitally brought out by a company of uniform excellence, and several of the individual performances are marked by a brilliancy of execution which leaves a lasting impression on the spectator. Particularly true is this of Adeline Dunlap, who assumes the title role, that of Jacqueline Floriot, who becomes in the development of the drama the mysterious "Madame X." Called upon as she is to represent the decline of a butterfly creature, sinking to the lowest stages of vice and degradation, to be finally cleansed and enobled through her love for her son, she runs the whole gamut of human emotion. That her performance rings true is testified to by the breathless interest with which her every syllable is received, and the almost tragic suspense which prevails during the great last act. If she were to strike one false note, if she were at any point to fail to convince, he whole structure would fall, but her aim and her art are unerring. Much has been written about the so-called immorality of "Madame X," but its staunchest supporters are clergymen and priests. Some deplore its rugged presentment of life in the underworld, but its sternest lesson is driven home because of the uncompromising method with which its material is handled. Its author has repeatedly stated that in its construction he was not writing a play, but giving a stage version of a life document. "Madame X" lived; she was not a creature of fancy; that is why her story is so pitiful. Miss Dunlap is assisted by a uniformly brilliant company among whom are Byron Douglas, Harry Mainhall, Naomi Childers, R. Paton Gibbs, Edwin Forsberg, Caroline Leonard, Harry C. Bradley, Maurice Drew, Charles Stanley, Helen Courtney and E. D. Gulse. The original production will be used during this engagement, and in the great court room scene, which is the sensational episode of the play, there are nearly one hundred people.

ASKS SOLDIERS TO ACT QUICKLY

Congressman Cline Sends Letter on Pension Increases.

WILL SEND BLANKS

Representative Cyrus Cline, writing from Washington under date of May 8, asks The Sentinel to give publicity to a letter which may enable veterans of the Twelfth congressional district to take early advantage of the new compromise pension bill which will provide an increase in pension for the soldiers. Congressman Cline's letter follows:

"Editor Sentinel: The conference committee having in charge the disagreement between the house and the senate on the Sherwood and Smoot pension bills has agreed on a compromise measure. The rates are not all the soldier deserves, but they are better than he now gets. The bill will undoubtedly be signed by the president very shortly. The bill provides that increases shall begin from the date of filing the claim. I want the soldiers of the Twelfth district to get in early on the increase provision and I am writing them to send me the name, company, regiment and length of service together with the number of the present pension certificate and I will send them the necessary blanks as soon as the pension office gets them out and if they will fill them out and forward them to me I will file them at once without any cost to them. I do not have a complete list of the soldiers of the district, and consequently will not reach all of them. If you will insert this letter in your paper I shall be able to get word to everybody, and those whom I do not get by letter will have the same opportunity as those who get personal notice.

"Very respectfully,
"CYRUS CLINE."

SPECIAL G. A. R. MEETING.

A special meeting of Lawton Wayne post No. 271, G. A. R., will be held Saturday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock at Vordermark's hall for the purpose of mustering new recruits. Important business relative to the state encampment will be discussed. The state meeting this year will be held at South Bend, May 21 to 23 and it is hoped to represent Fort Wayne with a large delegation. Many who reside in nearby towns have signified their intention of attending the meeting.

Following the business of the meeting a smoker and social session will be enjoyed by the comrades.

Three Rules of Health

1. Keep the Bowels open.—2. Help the Stomach digest it's food. 3. IRON-UP the Blood.

This transforms pale, anaemic, dyspeptic, ambitionless people into strong, healthy, hungry men and women. When you ask your druggist for a large box of IRON-UP, you'll find it in THREE kinds of tablets.

TABLET No. 1 gently removes all the lagging or decaying matter of the bowels and with it goes your Constipation, Bad Taste, Foul Breath and coated Tongue. It's wonderful. Twenty-four hours after taking, you'll feel like a new person.

TABLET No. 2 will digest a heavy meal without the slightest fuss or discomfort and relieve the sourest, acid, gassy, belching stomach in five minutes, besides overcoming heartburn and stomach headaches. Nothing equals it.

TABLET No. 3 is the iron tablet. It increases the red corpuscles of the blood, reddens pale cheeks and nourishes the nerves, on which depend your health, strength and happiness. It's sure to act. One trial convinces.

Makes weak stomachs strong.

IRON-UP is sold at all drugstores at one dollar a tin box. Every box contains a Guarantee Certificate from the Iron-Up Medicine Co., Chicago, Ill., for satisfaction or money refunded.

HEADACHY, CONSTIPATED, BILIOUS, TAKE DELICIOUS "SYRUP OF FIGS"

Removes the scum from the tongue, sweetens a sour, gassy, bilious stomach; cleanses your liver and 30 feet of bowels without gripe or nausea.

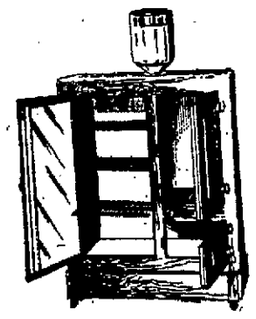
If headachy, bilious, dizzy, tongue coated, stomach sour and full of gas, you belch undigested food and feel sick and miserable, it means that your liver is choked with sour bile and your thirty feet of bowels are clogged with effete waste matter not properly carrid off. Constipation is worse than most folks believe. It means that this waste matter in the thirty feet of bowels decays into poisons, gases and acids and that these poisons are then sucked into the blood through the very ducts which should suck only nourishment to sustain the body.

Most people dread physic. They think of castor oil, salts and cathartic pills. They shrink from the after effects—so they postpone the dose until they get sick; then they do this liver and bowel cleansing in a heroic way—they have a bowel washday—That is all wrong. If you will take a teaspoonful of delicious Syrup of Figs tonight, you will never realize you have taken anything until morning, when all the poisonous matter, sour bile and clogged-up waste will be moved on and out of your system, thoroughly but gently—no griping—no nausea—no weakness. Taking Syrup of Figs is a real pleasure. Don't think you are drugging yourself; it is composed entirely of luscious figs, senna and aromatics, and constant use can not cause injury.

Ask your druggist for "Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna," and look for the name, California Fig Syrup Company, on the label. This is the genuine—old reliable. Any other Fig Syrup offered as good should be refused with contempt. Don't be imposed upon.

Automatic Refrigerators

With Water Cooler



Don't let your children drink water with ice in it. It is no longer necessary to do so to get a cold drink. Any physician will advise against it. Ice in drinking water may be called the "Death Cup." We urge you to inspect this Water Cooler. The Bottle Holder enables one to use spring water direct from the original package—bottled at the spring—to the drinking glass. Absolutely sanitary, convenient and very economical. The ice that cools the foods cools the drinking water for your whole family. A deliciously cold, pure supply of drinking water always on tap.

BASEBALL ATHLETICS

RICHIE TO FEEL OUT AD WOLGAST

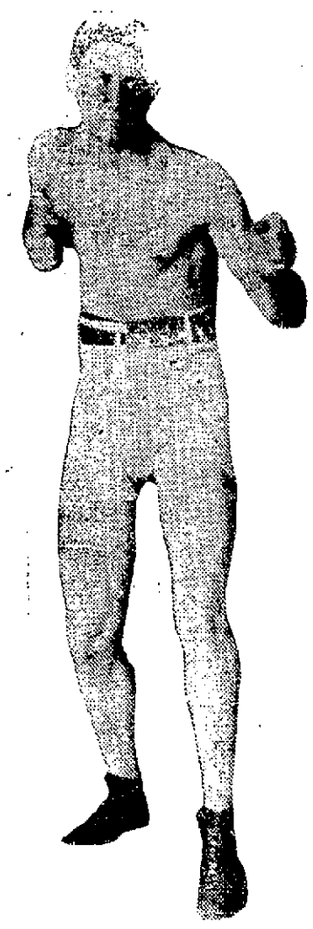
Four Rounds Will Prove Whether Champion is Back to Form.

HAS FAST OPPONENT

Is Ad Wolgast as good as ever?

Has the lightweight champion fully recovered from the operation for appendicitis that prevented his scheduled fight with Freddie Welsh in Los Angeles last November?

Has the wound that the surgeons inflicted left no lasting mark on the wonderful vitality and punch-resisting power of the Michigan wildcat?



WILLIE RICHIE.

These questions, asked thousands of fans all over the country since Wolgast left the hospital will be answered on Saturday afternoon when Willie Richie, of San Francisco, one of the fastest boys in the country and who created a furore when he invaded the east last winter following his sensational battle with Welsh as Wolgast's substitute, meets the champion in a scheduled four-round bout in Jim Coffroth's open air arena in San Francisco.

That he is right, that he has come back, that he feels better than ever is the positive assertion of Wolgast, who did his preparatory work for the bout by hiking over the mountains in Southern California, splitting rails, turning over virgin ground, swimming and getting all there is to be had out of the strenuous life.

"I am actual stronger than I was in my last fight," he says. I feel no ill effects whatever from the operation. The wound has healed thoroughly inside and out and both sides are well protected with muscles. It does not hurt me to be struck right over the spot where my appendix was located."

Possibly, but perhaps the punches he has received there since he resumed glove work were not sharp enough to make the test a thorough one. As long as he feels that way about it, however, he has a good asset.

That Richie will make that spot the target for left hooks is natural. Richie began doing glove work ten days before the fight, having as his sparring mates, Eddie Campi, the fastest bantam on the Pacific coast, and Babe Picato, a clever featherweight. Before the audiences they boxed in the usual manner, there being no evidence that Richie was perfecting an "appendix punch." But what they did in secret is another matter. It's a 10,000 to 1 shot that Richie devoted all of his efforts toward getting his glove past an appendix guard and how well he has perfected the blow can only be told when he and Wolgast start.

The general expectation is that Wolgast will start the battle with his stomach well guarded, but that as soon as he warms up to his work he will forget that he ever had an appendix and sail into Richie.

Richie is lightning fast on his feet and has a clever pair of fists.

While Richie may outpoint Wolgast in four rounds, not even his most ardent admirer expects to see him stop Wolgast.

BLACK SUITS OF VARNELL'S SQUAD

Fort Wayne Club Causes Lot of Talk With Its New Uniforms.

BYRNES ASKS FOR JOB

Grand Rapids, Mich., May 9.—Not since the days of the black and white check suits that Claude Varnell, Fort Wayne owner, bought for his Billiken troupe, has any club caused the sensation that the present team has with the uniforms of black and white lettering and stockings.

The minute one faces a player of the visiting squad he knows right where said player is from because blazoned right across his shirt front is the name of Fort Wayne in letters that can be read half a block.

The team arrived early today for a series of three games and the new manager says he has no fear except for his pitching staff, which he thinks will come through with a little warm weather.

Jack Byrnes, last year with the Evansville-South Bend teams, who finished ninth in the Central league batting lists with an average of .319, wired Owner Annis that he is now a free agent and offered his services. Annis referred the matter to Manager Smith, and if he can come to terms it is likely that Byrnes will be signed.

Byrnes' acquisition would strengthen the team in batting where it is manifestly weakest. With Kroy, as leadoff man, Doc Schmick, Byrnes and Lejeune in order, there would be a wrecking crew right. Kroy is a good waiter, a keen judge of what to hit and what not to strike at, and he delivers in the pinches. Schmick is dangerous to any pitcher at any time, and Lejeune and Byrnes form a slugging pair.

Kroy is back in the game, after several days' absence, during which he attended the funeral of a brother in Milwaukee. Had he performed in the first home series of four there might have been a quite different outcome, anyway in the second game, which was won by the enemy, 6 to 4, in a ninth-inning rally.

An innovation, which will be adopted in future games, with a view to forestalling possible disorderly conduct, will be the new system of doling out the cushions. At the close of Sunday's game quite a shower of cushions were tossed upon the field. Annis figures that it is not the people who used the cushions who threw them, but to prevent a recurrence of the episode he has devised this plan: People securing cushions will deposit 25 cents on receiving them, then on leaving the grounds they will return them to a big box placed at the exits for that purpose and will get a refund of 20 cents per cushion, making the rental 5 cents per game, the same as it always has been. Annis also announces that hereafter no pop or other soft drinks will be sold in bottles in stands or bleachers, as a preventive against possible accidents from this prolific source of trouble at ball games. Strict provisions against such sale are made in the concessionaire's lease, and these will be strictly enforced.

HARGROVE WILL BE HELD.

Terre Haute, Ind., May 9.—A report to the effect that Bubbles Hargrove is to be sold to the St. Paul club is denied by the Terre Haute management. He will be retained for the present at least. Two men have been purchased from Milwaukee and Steve Ragon and Johnny Nee have both agreed to report.

GUEISSER TO DANVILLE TEAM.

Danville, Ill., May 9.—Walter Queisser, of Indianapolis, well known pitcher and fielder, last year with South Bend and Terre Haute on the Central league, was today signed by the local Three-I team.

TY COBB'S GALL TAMES TIGERS

Georgia Peach Thinks He's a Nine-Pointed Star, Wants to Play All Positions, and Puts Jungle Crew Up in the Air for Fair.

Ty Cobb is so stuck on himself that he thinks he can play any position on the Detroit ball club.

He wants to play away from the outfield so he can "show up" his teammates. And the trouble is he is so good he can get away with it. The result is the rest of the Tigers are sore and the team is like a boiling teakettle with the spout plugged.

This season Cobb has been making a habit, in practice, of playing at first or pitching. At first he "shows up" Del Gainor, the regular first sacker, with ease. In the box he throws a spitball that breaks like a reed in a hurricane.

Sic Semper Tyrannus Cobb is the best ball player in the world. He gets $7,000 a year and he's worth it from one angle, because he draws a fortune through the ball park gates every season. But he's busting up the Tiger team just the same. Detroit, thrice champion, doesn't look like a winner now—and the reason is Ty Cobb.

Cobb shows why he gets $7,000. One day he slides into third and kicks the ball, which the baseman has dropped, into the Detroit bench and scores the winning run. Next day he steals home while the pitcher holds the ball.

Umpire Evans, watching the steal from the grand stand, said it was one of the most brilliantly conceived and executed plays he ever saw.

Despite these things, Cobb is a menace to the team's chances because his exaggerated ego gets on the nerves of the other players.

Cobb played second on the spring trip and showed he could become valuable with practice. Also he possesses a good spitball and won a game for an independent team in the south this spring.

There are fans who say Cobb wants to beat Del Gainor out of his job, for at every opportunity he works out at first, making one handed stabs, or scooping the ball a la Hal Chase. With his speed and agility Cobb might be a star at first, just as he might become another Lajoie at second, or a Walsh on the mound.

In Ty's mind there is no question that he would be a wonder in any position. It is not mere confidence, but a sort of "I cannot fail if everyone else does."

Cobb's ego resulted in the club losing his services this spring. He was assigned to a room that didn't suit him at a Chicago hotel, and after complaining that passing trains kept him awake and failing to get a room that suited, he left for Detroit.

The chances are Cobb could have been suited, but Cobb is apt to demand, instead of request and this clerk had an ego of his own. Cobb wanted Jennings to take the team away from the hotel, but the manager refused, so Cobb left. The official explanation is that Cobb wanted to consult his physician. The truth is Cobb was wounded in the ego.

The dissatisfied condition of the Detroit players is reflected in the attitude of the Detroit fans. That old whoop and sic-'em-puppy spirit is missing and even Jennings' comedy fails to meet more than passing applause.

But the owners can't consider getting rid of Cobb when they think of the gate receipts.

EXPECT REVIVAL AT THE MEETING

Local Trap Shooters Getting in Line for Big Event of June 10.

FOR AMATEURS ONLY

Local trap shooters expect that the meeting registered by the Interstate Association for the Encouragement of Trap Shooting for Fort Wayne on June 10, will bring about a revival of the sport. The tournament is being given under the direction of the Fort Wayne Gun club and Dr. A. Guy Emrick, president of the organization, is hustling hard to make the meeting a go.

The grounds of the Germania Park association will be used for the events and the men who expect to enter the contests are working almost every day on the range. With only a month to prepare themselves the shooters are working hard.

A few years ago local marksmen held regular meetings and work at the traps was a popular form of amusement, but the enthusiasm died out and only here and there for two or three years has any effort been made to revive it.

The great majority of sport loving Americans have no conception of the magnitude of the recreation and the tournament to be held in this city will go a long way toward impressing the public with the scope of the pastime and the type of men who follow it. The tournament will be one of 250 registered events of the season's campaign of the Interstate association, an organization which not only contributes its moral, but also its financial support to an incomparable sport. For 1912 the association has arranged to contribute $20,000 to the tournaments given under its auspices throughout the country. This large sum is distributed to fixtures in every section, and is bound to attract to the gatherings the highest quality of marksmen in the land. The tournaments as operated by the Interstate association are exclusively for amateurs, the professionals being on hand to demonstrate their skill only and show that America has the best class of marksmen in the world. The display of these men are a splendid attraction and form a potent card. Marvelous records are accredited to the experts, one top-notcher having a record of more than 500 consecutive breaks of clay targets at unknown angles. The program has been devised for amateurs exclusively, and competition will surely be acute among the local shotgun men.

TO TAKE UP THE CONTESTS JUNE 6

Republican Committee Fixes Date for Beginning of Hearings.

TWELVE DAYS AT IT

New York, May 9.—The republican national committee will meet in Chicago Thursday afternoon, June 6, to decide contests among delegates to the national republican convention. The call for the meeting was issued yesterday by William Hayward, secretary of the committee. This will be the earliest meeting held for many years by the committee and will give it twelve days to consider contests before the convention opens on June 18.

Indications that there will be an unusual number of contests this year, Mr. Hayward said, had been considered by Victor Rosewater, the committee's acting chairman, and himself in sending out the call for the early meeting of the committee. A few contests already have been brought officially before the committee's officers and many more are expected, he said, before the expiration of the time limit for filing contests on May 29, twenty days before the convention.

Mr. Hayward also announced that he would place before the committee a plan upon which he has been working for some time that will affect the representation of the south in republican national conventions. The principal objecion to plans previously suggested, he said, was the elimination of the congressional district as the unit representation. The plan he would submit to the committee would change the basis of representation, he said, and still retain the congressional district as the unit.

"What we want to do if possible," Mr. Hayward said, "is to get the committee together early enough to have sufficient time to consider these contests deliberately and avoid holding night sessions, which were necessary before. The sessions probably will be executive as heretofore and the contests will all be considered by the entire committee.

"The contests will probably be taken up as before, in alphabetical order by states. Four years ago thirty minutes was allowed for the presentation of contests over delegates-at-larg and not to exceed fifteen minutes for district delegates. Consolidation of district and at-large delegates where the issues were identical was permitted, thus lengthening the time allowed for the whole. This year we hope to give the contestants a little more time.

"We have received some notices of contests, but nowhere near as many as reported by the newspapers. Also we have not received anywhere near the credentials from the various delegates in districts and staes where there is no contest. However, we expect to receive many more yet, as they have until twenty days before the convention meets to file either contess or credentials."

Rids Skin of All Hairs, Try it, Free

Wonderful New Preparation, Unlike Anything Ever Known Before.

"These Hairs Will Be Gone in 3 Minutes!" "Hairs Gone Forever!"

I want every man and woman who wants to get rid of superfluous hair, anywhere on the body, to see the extraordinary results of my new Elec-tro-la, the most remarkable preparation. You have never used anything like it before, and you will never use anything else when once you've tried it. Unlike other preparations, Elec-tro-la absolutely and forever destroys the life of the hair roots. Moreover, Elec-tro-la is safe, absolutely. No reddening of the skin. No irritation. In three minutes all superfluous hairs are gone. The skin, no matter how tender, is left refreshed, soft and beautiful.

Heavy growths and light growths vanish. Any woman can now free her arms, neck, face and bust of all downy or heavy hairs and her beauty enhanced a hundred fold. I am going to prove it to you, and send you a liberal trial package of this new Elec-tro-la if you will simply send me your name and address on the coupon below, with a 2-cent stamp to help pay cost of mailing. The full-size package of Elec-tro-la is $1.00. I will send you the $1.00 package now, if you prefer, on receipts of price, and refund your money if you are not satisfied.

FREE TREATMENT.

Fill in your name and address on dotted lines below and send it to me, Anna Burton, 231 East 43rd St., Room 79, Chicago, enclosing a two-cent stamp to help cover mailing, and I will send you at once a free trial package of the remarkable new Elec-tro-la.

Without the Stork.

There are no storks in the dense forests of Dutch Guiana, where live simple, harmless Indians. The poor Indian mother goes out of her home, a simple shelter from rain raised on a few sticks, and broods in the forest. She soon comes back, not alone as she went out, but with a little baby boy or girl, sometimes twins. Old Mr. Indian smiles quietly when he first sees the little one and from some superstition he believes he must not work and kill game for several weeks. So he lies in his hammock and sometimes holds the little one as the other Indians come up and tell him how happy he ought to be as the father of the fine baby. In two or three days the little one is swung in a hammock and carried at its mother's breast while she works the casava fields. Baby seldom or never cries and is not one tenth as much trouble as an American baby.

GIVES INDIANA OLD PORTRAITS

Crayon Likenesses of Former Speakers Donated by Government.

THREE IN THE LIST

Washington, May 9.—Some day in the near future there will be delivered at the office of Lew Ellingham, secretary of state of Indiana, a large crate containing three crayon portraits.

Mr. Ellingham probably never has heard of the windfall that is coming to him and without this advance notice he might refuse to accept the package, but, as a matter of fact, he can do so without fear of being bunkoed, as the coming shipment of art creations will be a "free gratis" gift from Uncle Sam to the state of Indiana.

In the hurly-burly of legislation, it almost has been overlooked that the house of representatives the other evening adopted the following resolution:

Whereas, For many years there have been hanging upon the walls of the speaker's lobby crayon portraits of Former Speakers James K. Polk, John Bell, Howell Cobb, John W. Davis, M. C. Kerr, Schuyler Colfax, Robert M. T. Hunter, Andrew Stevenson, Philip Barbour, J. W. Jones, John G. Carlisle, J. L. Orr, Langdon Cheeves, Nathaniel Macon and William Pennington, and

Whereas, By resolution of the Sixty-first congress these portraits were ordered substituted by oil paintings, which are now being hung in place of said crayon portraits; therefore be it

Resolved, That as soon as said portraits are substituted, the crayon portraits be given to the states whose representatives said former speakers were, and that the clerk of the house shall ship said crayon portraits to the secretary of state of the several states entitled to receive them, provided that no part of the cost of transporting said portraits shall be paid by the government.

Indiana has had more than its proportion of speakers of the national house and, therefore, Indiana is entitled to and will receive three crayon portraits, those of John W. Davis, Michael C. Kerr and Schuyler Colfax.

Interest in Collections.

It is quite the fad among smart folk to flock to sales of rare books, furniture or pictures, even when they have no intention of buying. For each of these collections is the result of a lifetime of study, and the opportunity to see them as a whole cannot recur again, while individually the pieces, passing into private hands, may be lost to the public for years. For this reason young girls are sent with their governesses to see the treasures that will soon be scattered far and wide, and even whole classes from fashionable schools are taken for morning views. Such visits, naturally, do more for the artistic education of these fortunate young folk than weeks of lecturing and photographs.

LOSES HAIR; SAVES VALUABLES.

Elyria, O., Miss Has Unusual Encounter With Burglar.

Elyria, O., May 9.—Shorn of her long braid of hair, Miss Elizabeth Hamilton, 16, is consoled by the knowledge that she frightened away a thief who but for her would have appropriated $500 worth of her father's valuables. The girl heard a noise in the house yesterday morning and investigated. She was seized by a burglar who cut off her braid, threw her into a clothes basket in a closet, broke a window and escaped, leaving his bag of plunder.

The screams of the girl awakened Mrs. Hamilton, who found her daughter little the worse for the encounter, save that her hair was gone.

After an illness of three weeks' duration, L. Moore, a truck repairman in the Pennsylvania tank shop, resumed work there this morning.

WABASH SCHOOL OF INSTRUCTION

Enginemen's Car in the City for a Few Days' Stay.

FORT WAYNE MAY GET NEW ROAD

Chicago and Northwestern Directors Consider the Proposition.

The car of the Wabash enginemen's school of instruction is in the city, where it will remain until tomorrow, when it will be taken to Peru. The car and equipment is furnished free by the Wabash company and is under the direction of John Pearson, who is paid by the enginemen themselves by monthly contributions. It is fitted up with complete air brake apparatus, injectors, lubricators, electric headlights and such other appliances as are used on locomotives, and under the instruction of Mr. Pearson the enginemen are given much valuable information as to their operation.

The enginemen of the Wabash have taken considerable pride in the school of instruction and have worked very hard to place it in its present position of usefulness. After a stay at Peru, during which time an opportunity will be afforded all Wabash engineers there to receive instruction, it will proceed west over the road, Danville, Ill., being the first stopping place.

FORT WAYNE ON NEW ROUTE.

The following dispatch was sent out from Chicago last night, after a meeting of the board of directors of the Chicago and Northwestern railway, and is of considerable local interest: "The new proposed route of the Chicago and Northwestern railroad through Illinois and Indiana from St. Louis eastward was discussed here today by members of the board of directors of the company and representatives from various cities concerned. Neither denied nor affirmed a rumor that the Northwestern is considering absorbing the Toledo, St. Louis and Western franchise, known as the Clover Leaf. The route now under consideration is St. Louis to Indianapolis and thence north through Muncie, Marion, Fort Wayne and into Toledo. The route has met with undivided approval and it is thought that in case another minor road cannot be taken over a new line will be installed in the near future."

MORE NEW MEN WABASH.

Work at the local Wabash shops still increases and the demand for more help grows greater daily. This morning the following new men were given employment and they went to work at once. Gy W. Davis and C. Gaskill, blacksmiths; R. E. Gibbs, G. W. Sanderson and A. E. Gibbs, machinist helpers, and M. E. Burns, river heater. F. C. Petard, a pipefitter formerly of this city, but later of Decatur, Ill., has returned here and went to work for the company today.

Frank Capps, who was formerly employed at the Wabash coal docks for several years, but who resigned about two years ago and went to his old home in Italy, has returned and this morning resumed his old position with the company.

VOLUNTEER FIREMEN.

F. G. Duryee, of the Fort Wayne Electric works, who is president of the Northeastern Indiana Volunteer Firemen's association, is in receipt of word from Butler, Garrett, Portland, Albany, Bluffton, Middletown and other places to the effect that all the towns mentioned above will send big delegations of firemen to the convention at Dunkirk, Ind., on June 27. The members of the Bluffton company have chartered automobiles and will attend the meeting in that way.

MEETING OF FREIGHT MEN.

The monthly meeting of junction agents of the Pennsylvania company from points between Bucyrus, Ohio, and Gary, Ind., was held this afternoon at the offices of Division Freight Agent E. T. Wood, in the Anthony hoel building. Matters pertaining to freight business of the company were discussed and about twenty-five agents were in attendance.

WORK SUSPENDED FOR WEEK.

Pending repairs to the steam shovel operated by the C. R. & I. road at the company's gravel pit at Wolcottville, Ind., which will require about a week, four work train crews from this city will be compelled to lay off and the men have returned here until operations have been resumed.

ROLLING MILLS ENGINE REPAIRED.

The engine of the nine-inch mill at the Rolling mills, which was disabled a week ago, necessitating a shut down, has been repaired and will resume operations tomorrow morning.

R. A. Andrews, of the Pennsylvania erecting shop, is on the sick list.

Conductor Thomas Galloway has reported for duty on the Nickel Plate.

J. Cashen and E. Mertens are new men in the punch room at the Electric works.

Brakeman S. M. Paulison, of the Nickel Plate, is taking a few days' lay off.

J. W. Thompson and E. C. Steil, Pennsylvania machinists, are sick and off duty.

W. S. Lieberenz has accepted employment inthe Pennsylvania blacksmith shop.

A. H. Crissey, carpenter in the Pennsylvania round house, is sick and off duty.

Fireman C. A. Dierdorff has reported for duty on the Nickel Plate after an absence.

Lon Evans, Nickel Plate engineer, has reported for duty on the road after an absence.

Sickness of his wife keeps Fireman S. P. Ring, of the Pennsylvania road, from duty.

A. M. Tower, of the Pennsylvania machine shop, is off duty to attend the funeral of a relative.

Engineer E. Norris, of the Pennsylvania road, is off duty owing to the sickness of his child.

Frank Ensley, Pennsylvania passenger engineer, has reported for duty on the road after an absence.

Engineer E. H. Graybill, of the Nickel Plate, is at Lake James, where he is erecting a cottage at that resort.

H. Hench, of the Pennsylvania blacksmith shop, is off duty on account of an injured eye, caused by flying sparks.

Engineer C. N. Francis, of the Nickel Plate, was called to Fostoria, Ohio, yesterday on account of the death of his mother.

F. J. Poole, of the Pennsylvania company, is building a new cottage at Lake James which he expects to have ready for occupancy about June 1.

Lester Johnson and J. Steinbacker have resumed their duties in the Wabash boiler shop, after being absent for a time on account of injuries.

Frank J. Bercot, general claim agent of the Nickel Plate, with headquarters in Cleveland, Ohio, is visiting in the city for a few days. Mr. Bercot was formerly local claim agent for the company in this city.

What is called the red book, quoting tourist rates to points in the New England states and the Catskill mountains, issued annually by the Nickel Plate road, has just been received at the local ticket office of the company and interested parties can secure copies by application to the agent.

A. Durienski, a laborer in the Pennsylvania car machine shop, was quite painfully injured yesterday afternoon while pushing a heavy truck, which got away from him while going down an incline and one of his legs was more or less seeverely crushed. He will be off duty several days in consequence.

United States Attorney Charles W. Miller, on information furnished by the interstate commerce commission, has filed suits at Indianapolis and Peru against the Chesapeake and Ohio Railway company of Indiana, in which penalties of $14,500 are demanded for violations of the hours of service act. Twenty-nine violations of the law during October, November and December, 1911, are charged.

At a conference between the officials of the Lake Erie and Western railway and a committee from the common council of the city of Muncie, some matters pertaining to the erection by the railroad company of a large freight station in that city were discussed. Concessions are asked by both sides, with fair prospect of an early adjustment and in that event the railroad will probably proceed with the erection of what is said to be one of the finest freight stations in Indiana, of which blue prints and specifications have already been drawn.

Elaborate plans, it is announced, are being made for the special trains to carry members of the National Electric Light association to the thirty-fifth annual convention at Seattle, Wash., June 10-14. Two trains, to be called the orange and green specials, will depart from Chicago by the Santa Fe and the Soo line. Each will be decorated with thousands of colored electric lights. The color scheme will be carried out on tickets and in other ways. There will also be a blue special from New York and a purple special from St. Louis. Many unusual electrical appliances will be part of the train equipment.

ARREST OF PARIS TAXI BANDIT.

The notorious Paris taxicab bandit Gouzy, implicated in twenty-two murders, is the man bareheaded with open mouth, in the clutch of a Paris policeman. In the disguise of an informer he led Detective Jouin into a death trap. Gouzy was Bonnot's righthand man in murders and robberies. It was with difficulty that the police saved Gouzy from being lynched by the maddened people, shown in the photograph running alongside the bandit yelling at him. He is seen cursing vigorously in choicest gutter French.

MEMORIALS POUR INTO CONFERENCE

Methodist Body Has Big Job in Disposing of Requests.

FAMOUS 260 IN LEAD

Minneapolis, May 9.—Scores of memorials are pouring into the general conference of the Methodist Episcopal church in session here and probably before the final adjournment will appear before the conference for final action.

Far in the lead is that relating to the famous paragraph 260 of the church discipline, which prohibits dancing, card playing and kindred amusements. That this section will be amended at the present session to leave the question to the conscience of the individual member is the belief of many of the delegates.

Another memorial which has appeared frequently in the church records is that changing the name of the "district superintendent" back to that of "presiding elder." The latter was in use until the change was made at Baltimore four years ago and it is claimed by many that the new name has not proved satisfactory.

A Suffragette Movement.

That there is a "suffragette movement" in the church has been shown by the introduction of a memorial which asks that women be licensed to preach. A number of years ago a rule was adopted forbidding the ordaining of a woman minister, but it is probable that the question again will be discussed at the present session.

Commendation of Indian Commissioner Robert C. Valentine for his order directing that in government schools all insignia of any particular denomination be removed and that those wearing a distinctive church garb lay such aside while engaged in government duties, was given in a resolution adopted yesterday.

Some Other Work.

Included in work done by the conference were the following items:

Went on record as favoring union of Methodist-Episcopal churches and Methodist-Episcopal Church south.

Referred to committee a resolution asking that each member of the church give to the church one-tenth of his income.

In a motion presented by Rev. Edwin G. Griffith, trustee of the Arch Street Methodist Episcopal church of Philadelphia, he asked the conference to investigate the action of Bishop Thomas B. Neeley, declaring that the church had been treated in an unwise and unfair manner in the appointment of a pastor.

THREW SOCIALIST OUT.

Deputy Boarchardt is Ejected from Prussian Diet Chamber.

Berlin, May 9.—The long standing conflict between President Baron von Erffa and six socialists of the Prussian diet, resulted today in the calling of police to the diet chamber where they ejected Deputy Boarchardt. The latter stood near the tribune during an anti-socialist speech and repeatedly interrupted the speaker. The president ordered him to be seated, and on his refusal declared him excluded from the session. Boarchardt refused to withdraw and the session was suspended while a lieutenant and four policemen carried him violently struggling to the street.

Later Boarchardt returned and was again ejected. The socialists owing to the classified franchise, have a very small representation but have succeeded in greatly inconveniencing the president and other parties during the recent session. A revision of the rules of order to prevent such obstruction by a minority is pending.

BUGS RAYMOND REINSTATED.

Cincinnati, May 9.—Player A. L. (Bugs) Raymond, former pitcher for the New York National league club, was today reinstated by the national base ball commission and expected to report to the New York team. Raymond has been under suspension for a year and recently has been playing with the Chicago team in the United States league.

SHARP CLASH IN MEAT INQUIRY.

Solicitor McCabe Attacks Credibility of Inspection Witneses.

Washington, May 9.—Solicitor McCabe of the department of agriculture, attacked the credibility of witnesses called by Representative Nelson, of Wisconsin, in support of his resolution calling for an investigation of the meat inspection service before the house committee on expenditures in the department of agriculture today. Mr. Nelson had announced that his next important witness would be J. W. Burroughs, "a man who spent seven years in the meat inspection service and resigned of his own accord a month ago," when Solicitor McCabe interrupted.

"Just put him on if you want to," he said. "That man was forced out of the service for borrowing money from packers."

"Yes, Mr. Chairman, that is the practice of the department," said Mr. Nelson. "Charges are denied by attacks on the reputation of others."

McCabe demanded to be heard but Chairman Moss rapped for order. He said that the remarks of the gentlemen were out of place. The session adjourned until tomorrow.

NOT TAKEN TO DEATH CELL.

Sheriff Quinn Defers Action in Case of Slayer Richeson.

Boston, Mass., May 9.—Clarence V. T. Richeson, who is sentenced to die in the electric chair during the week beginning May 19, will not be removed to the death cell in the state prison today. Sheriff Quinn, of Suffolk county, who has charge of the Charles street jail, where Richeson is confined, is the authority for this statement. Sheriff Quinn explained that while it was the general public belief that it was required that a condemned man should spend at least ten days in the death cell it was not necessary under the law to take the prisoner there until the time of execution. It was entirely at the sheriff's discretion he said.

GOMEZ IS A PRISONER.

Provisional President of Mexico Locked Up at Juarez.

Washington, May 9.—Emilio Vasquez Gomez is held a prisoner in the customs house in Juarez, according to advices to the state department today. A heavy guard has been placed around the custom house. The department is further advised that Orozco probably will not confirm Gomez as president. The reports indicate the rebels have been defeated in the mountain pass of El Puerto del Carmon, between Moncova and Cuatro Cienegas, Coahuila.

WOULD ABOLISH COURT.

House Votes 120 to 49 to Kill Off Commerce Tribunal.

Washington, May 9.—The house voted 120 to 49 to abolish the United States court of commerce, many republicans voting with the democrats. Cases now pending before the court under the abolition provision contained in the legislative, executive and judiciary appropriation bill would be transferred to the various federal district courts having competent jurisdiction.

TAFT HOME FOR BRIEF STAY.

President Is Spending a Single Day in Washington.

Washington, May 9.—President Taft arrived in Washington this afternoon for a twenty-four stay. Tomorrow evening he will start for Princeton. Director McKinley, of the Taft campaign headquarters, boarded the president's train at Baltimore and conferred with his chief during the ride to Washington.

Milk Wins.

There is a tradition of a little slum boy from London who was very disappointed with the country, where he went for a short holiday, because he saw them "pump milk from a dirty old cow." The boy's idea of artificial milk is within realization, for, according to "L'Opinion," after manufactured butter we are to have artificial milk. It is already consumed extensively in China, and a mill is to be set up in France. The Chinese drop a few grains of powder into water, stir it, and it becomes milk. The powder is the soja bean crushed, and the French mill is to treat the bean so as to enable the milk powder to be sold in packets. It is said that an excellent cheese is obtained by the same process.—London Globe.

He'd Have to Pay.

A story was told the other day in Washington, apropos of a very artificial and self-conducted boom:

"Blank, you know, was to visit his state last week. Well, a friend said to him, just before he set off:

"'I suppose they will give you a magnificent ovation, Mr. Blank?'

"Blank frowned, twisted his mustache, and answered in a nervous absentminded way:

"'Well, I don't know. My bank account has sunk terribly low of late.'"

Man and the Mammoth.

The skeleton of a mammoth discovered in the department of Pas de Calais, France, measures 49½ feet in length. The head is well preserved, with finely enameled molars of the true Siberian type, thus furnishing one more proof that the whole country was once a land of ice and snow. At a dinner given recently on a sand-bar in the Danube an attempt was made to convey an idea of the food consumed by man in the time of the mammoth. Cabbage soup cooked over hot stones, horse ham, roast pork with boiled millet, and turnips cooked in hot ashes composed the bill of fare. The dessert was dried pears and honey.—Harper's Weekly.

The Ladies Missionary society of the Bethany Presbyterian church will meet Friday afternoon at the church.

The Sliding Seat.

A sliding stroke was adopted by English oarsmen long before movable seats, but upon what the Americans called the "buckskin and butter" plan. Newcastle scullers used to slide on a long, highly polished thwart by the free use of grease or soap, their rowing trousers being strapped at the seat with wash leather. This device was introduced to the Thames by Robert Chambers when he sculled a match with Harry Kelly in 1865, and was used by the Tyne crew when they rowed St. John, New Brunswick, in 1870. In 1871 the Tyne crew, who had gained a knowledge of the movable seat during their visit to America, used sliding seats at Newcastle; and they were fitted to the coxswainless four in which the London Rowing club beat the Atlanta crew, of New York, in 1872. After the success of the new arrangement at Henley, sliding seats were adopted by both universities for the varsity boat race of 1873.

RAID AN ILLICIT STILL IN INDIANA

Officers Find Contraband Liquor Tucked Away in a Cradle.

UNCOVER 65 GALLONS

Indianapolis, May 9.—Sixty-five gallons of brandy and two stills were seized yesterday by F. M. Smith, of the internal revenue department today and John Saltain arrested at his home near St. Peters, Ind., where the outfit was found hidden in a cradle, covered with bed clothing.

This is said to be the largest haul made by the department in Indiana in ten years. Saltain is charged with having concealed brandy from the government and with selling without a government license. Officers had been watching Saltain since last August.

On arriving at the farm Mr. Smith entered, sending other men to find Saltain, who was not at home.

"Can I get a drink?" asked Mr. Smith of Mrs. Saltain.

"No, I gues not," was her answer.

"Well, don't you keep a little bit around here, enough for a drink or so?" Mr. Smith asked.

"There's a half gallon down there," Mrs. Smith replied, pointing it out.

Mr. Smith obtained the half gallon jug and asked for more. He seized another cask near by, despite the protestations of Mrs. Saltain. He noticed a cradle in the room at the head of the stairs. He entered and lifted the covers from the cradle and to his surprise found a five gallon jar of brandy.

"Well, well, I never did think you would find that tucked away in the cradle," exclaimed the farmer's wife.

Mr. Smith continued his search, his assistants in the meantime having found Saltain in a saw mill about three miles away. They brought him home and Mr. Smith began a "sweating" process, which continued for three hours until Saltain is alleged to have admitted his guilt. Mr. Smith was in the act of destroying the paraphernalia used in the manufacture of the brandy before Saltain weakened.

WANT LAW REVISED.

Bakers Object to One Feature of Pure Food Measure.

Indianapolis, May 9.—Before the close of the eighth annual meeting of the Indiana Association of Master Bakers, adjourned yesterday, plans were made to make a fight for the revision of the sanitary food laws in the next legislature. The present law provides that all bakers' goods shall be kept under glass, metal or wood coverings. The bakers wish this section amended, holding that freshly baked goods under cover soon spoil.

At last night's banquet Frank Middleton, of Marion, presided as toastmaster.

The following officers were elected: Frank Middleton, Marion, president; Richard Cunnington, Muncie, vice president; August B. Thau, Indianapolis, secretary; William F. Geller, Fort Wayne, treasurer (re-elected), Julius Rasteter, Evansville; Joseph Lauler and Albert L. Stubbs, Indianapolis, members of executive committee.

RECALLS FAMOUS BATTLE.

Bones of Indians Slain in 1811 Come to Light at Lafayette.

Lafayette, Ind., May 9.—Sam Halsema and James Shipley, while hunting mushrooms on the Wild Cat creek yesterday found five skeletons in a pile near the Fort Wayne and Northern Indiana interurban bridge. The recent high water undermined the banks and the bones were found in the side of the embankment. Four of the skulls crumbled into powder, while the fifth remained intact.

The bones are thought to be those of Indians killed in the battle of Tippecanoe, Nov. 7, 1811. The bones were placed in a sack and brought to this city. After the battle a large band of Indians retreated up the Wild Cat creek, carrying their dead and it is thought that they buried a number at this point. The fact that the bodies were all found in a pile bears out this theory. What became of the Indians killed in the battle of Tippecanoe has always been a mystery as, after the battle, but few bodies were found on the field.

Col. R. F. DeHart, a collector of Indian relics, will place the bones in his museum in his lodge on the Wabash river.

NAMES NEW POLICE BOARD.

Bloomington's Mayor Hopes to Have Metropolitan Force.

Bloomington, Ind., May 9.—Bloomington will have a new metropolitan police system if the police board, just appointed by Mayor John C. Harris, is not enjoined by the city council. The mayor has just completed the work of taking a special census of the city, and finds that Bloomington has a population of 10,336. Under the law the mayor has the authority to have a census taken when he believes the city has a population of 10,000 or more. Last year the mayor had a census taken and appointed a police board, but an injunction suit filed in circuit court prevented the new system from going into effect. The mayor has appointed William T. Blair, John H. Huntington and William H. Buskirk as police commissioners, and each qualified yesterday by giving $5,000 bonds, signed by Walter Bradfute and George D. Thornton.

BABY GIRL'S FLOWHEART AND RETURNERS TOUCH OLD MAN'SO HER IN GOLD.

MISS DOROTHY BATEMAN

Many years ago a baby girl, the daughter of a Newport, R. I., inn-keeper, presented a bouquet of her own picking to a strange, old man, who sat a-fishing on a pier at the fashionable summer resort.

"Dey is so pwitty, Mister Man," she lisped, "and dey is all for oo."

The old man, Ross Revillon Winans, died the other day, bequeathing $500,000 of his $4,000,000 estate to the little girl, Miss Dorothy Bateman, now grown to beautiful womanhood. Winans' son was willed only $200,000, having enraged the father by marrying a Spanish dancer, and the will entirely cuts off the two children of his dead daughter, who married Prince du Bearn.

The friendship which began the day the girl gave him the flowers continued through the years. Every summer he would go to Newport. The little girl was always his boon companion, romping and playing with him and helping him, in her childish way, when he fished.

"She has done more to make the last years of my life happy than anyone else," Winans told his friends. "She learned to know just what kind of flowers I liked, gathered them from her garden and placed them in my room. She looked after me in a thousand ways. She used to think I was ill and she tried to help and cheer me. And she did. And I am grateful."

That she is now worth half a million dollars has not changed the girl. She is back again in her father's boarding house, after having been to Baltimore to learn of her fortune. And the day she got back she changed from her traveling clothes to her "home clothes" and went out fishing with her brother.

COURT RECORD OF FIVE CENTS.

Tiny Sum Placed on Books of Circuit Court to Remedy Error.

St. Louis, Mo., May 9.—The smallest legal transaction that perhaps ever took place in the St. Louis courts was placed on record in Circuit Judge Homer's court.

It was a remittance for 5 cents from a judgment given in the court last January.

The judgment was in the suit of G. R. Jansen against A. R. Grund for a balance on a note. The judgment as returned by the jury was, including interest, for $103.70. An error of 5 cents was made in the computation of the interest.

The Echo.

I stood on the hill at twilight
And the world was far away,
While the peace of the night came drifting
Down on the dying day.

A star came out in the heavens,
Beautiful, shining, white,
And I lifted my voice in the silence:
"God's love is above the night."

And back o'er the valley the echo
Came hurled like a shaft of light,
The far-away hills were saying:
"God's Love is Above the Night."

When the last day dies into twilight,
And the world drifts far away,
And my soul's salute is lifted
Above the clutch of clay,

May its voice come back o'er the valley
To those who wait for light,
And beat at their souls with the echo:
"God's love is above the night."

PENSION TO SCRUBWOMAN.

After Thirty-nine Years With City Is To Retire.

Muskogee, Okla., May 9.—Mrs. McKenney, of East Boston, who has scrubbed floors and done other janitor work for the city for thirty-nine years, is willing to be retired on half pay if necessary, but she doesn't ask for it.

Louis K. Rourke, commissioner of public works, has forwarded to the city's pension retirement board a list of thirty-five men and one woman who have been employed by the city for twenty-five years or more, who are seventy years old or more, and who, therefore, must be retired on half pay.

Mrs. McKenney entered the city employ on March 27, 1873, as a janitor, or janitress, in the ferry department. She works in the headhouse on the city side of the north ferry. For thirty-nine years she has kept care of the headhouse, working hard and faithfully.

She has passed through many administrations and has survived them all and has always been on duty at the north ferry headhouse and has drawn her $40 a month.

On retiring her pension will be $20 a month.

"I am willing to accept retirement and a pension if they say so," says Mrs. McKenney, "but I have not applied for it. I can do my work as regularly as ever."

MEMORIAL TO TOM JOHNSON.

Cleveland Street Car Riders Profit to Extent of $5,044,427.

Cleveland, O., May 9.—The sum of $5,044,427.09 is the memorial that stands to honor Tom L. Johnson on the first anniversary of his death. This represents the saving to Cleveland car riders in the first two years of 3-cent fare, ending March 1. Compilation of figures showing the tremendous saving was completed just a year from the day Tom Johnson breathed his last in the White Hall.

Johnson died one year ago. His body lies in Greenlawn cemetery, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Safety Director Stage, a close friend of Johnson, and associate through the street car fight and political campaigns, said the greatest monument to Tom is the annual saving to Cleveland people in street car fare. The Johnson memorial committee has $10,000. Decision will be made on plans to continue the effort to procure funds, or to end the campaign and use funds now on hand.

Woman Comes Face to Face With Man Thought Dead.

TWO DIVORCES NOW

Los Angeles, Cal., May 9.—Supposed by his wife to have perished from cold in northern Alaska, Warren A. Wade, a miner and cook, walked past Mrs. Wade on Spring street, an apparition in the flesh, bringing consternation to her, for she had been married to George M. Ormsby eighteen months ago.

Breaking the news to Ormsby, Mrs. Wade brought suit in the superior court to have her marriage to Ormsby annulled in order that she might marry him again after getting a divorce from Wade.

Mrs. Wade was Miss Susie Marshall when she met and was married to Wade in Seattle five years ago. Their marital existence seems not to have been a bed of roses and Mrs. Wade left her husband, going to Tacoma. Early in 1909 she received a letter from a friend in Alaska giving details of the alleged death of Wade, who, according to the missive, was frozen on a difficult trail while gold hunting along the Porcupine river. Mrs. Wade, thinking she had been freed, married George M. Ormsby.

The Ormsbys came to Los Angeles and for eighteen months they lived in happiness. But during the residence of his wife and Ormsby in Los Angeles Wade has also been a resident of this city. Mrs. Wade almost fainted when she recognized her husband on the street. She had told Ormsby the whole story of her first marriage and of her husband's supposed death. When she told the news of his reappearance they quickly decided upon seeking an undoing of Mrs. Wade's matrimonial tangle in the courts and engaged Attorney John S. Steely to bring the annulment suit.

Mrs. Wade has plainly indicated that she prefers her second husband to the first, and her attorney will urge haste on the part of the courts so that she may be freed from both unions to again be led to the altar by Ormsby.

Mrs. Wade's father, H. J. Marshall, is a wealthy landowner in Arizona, and she is endeavoring to keep her matrimonial experiences from him.

Wade is employed as manager of one of the dairy lunches on Spring street. He asserts he is not the man mentioned in Mrs. Wade's suit. This Wade has a wife and six months' old baby. He says that, although he was once a sailor, he never went to Alaska and never was frozen to death.

MANY EUROPEAN ACTS

Coming With Howe's Great London Shows, May 17.

Howe's Great London shows consolidated will appear in Fort Wayne Friday, May 17.

While the trained wild beasts are a great feature, the regular line of circus acts is fully up to a high standard.

The wonderful Zanfreta Family are a surprise and have no euals in the circus world. The Riding Lowandes are among the big acts; the Bertik Troupe, Flying Juniato Twins, the Bronze Troupe of acrobats have no peers. The Kentucky menage and high school horses are seen only with this show. The clowns are funny, the gymnasts clever; the elephants numerous and the menagerie is large and the Glasgow Prize Team a great feature.

A free street parade will be given, which will leave the grounds at ten o'clock on the day of the performance.

TO AILING WOMEN

A Little Sound Advice Will Help Many a Sufferer in Fort Wayne.

No woman can be healthy and well if the kidneys are sick. Poisons that pass off in the secretions when the kidneys are well, are retained in the body when the kidneys are sick. Kidneys and bladder become inflamed and swollen and worse troubles quickly follow. This is often the true cause of bearing down pains, lameness, backache, etc. Uric poisoning also causes headaches, dizzy spells, langour, nervousness and rheumatic pain.

When suffering so, try Doan's Kidney Pills, a remedy that has cured thousands of such cases. You will get better as the kidneys get better and health will return when the kidneys are well. Let a Fort Wayne woman tell you about Doan's Kidney Pills.

Mrs. A. Brooks, 221 Lewis street, Fort Wayne, Ind., says. "I have taken Doan's Kidney Pills for five years whenever I have been in need of a kidney medicine, procuring them from Meyer Bros. Co.'s Drug Store. This preparation has relieved me of backache and pains through my kidneys and has restored my strength and energy."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

LIED BEAUTIFULLY TO HER

Amy, Good Woman, Listened to Jim Bones' Autobiography, Expurgated for Her Ears.

They sat down in the entry of Amy's house and talked—that is, Jim talked. It was the first time that he had willingly given out in Ruckersville any of the details of his past. But now all at once it seemed that he had an overwhelming desire to get it properly expurgated and set forth to Amy's admiring ears. It was no more the truth than any other man's past is the truth whe he tells it to a woman. She inspired him to lie about it beautifully, as she inspired Elbert to lie about his daily existence, and as every good woman inspires every bad man to fabricate his autobiography. As he went on with the tale of his adventures he began to see himself glorified in the placid, smiling attention of her sweet blind face. He wondered why in the world he had been so secretive about those years in the west.

Jim Bone perceived all at once that he was not the rowdy he had supposed himself to be, but something of a hero of the chapter-heading smiles upon Amy's lips. Given the tablet of such a countenance, and the worst man in existence can make shining scriptures of an ill-spent life. The truth is, we are all autobiographical liars. But the funny thing is that once we see ourselves clarified by such faith as Amy's, we accept her version, and experience a shriven peace that must distract the God who makes our moral sense, but does not control it afterward. On this occasion Bone finished his metamorphosis from the outlaw into the modest deprecating hero simply by a method of narrative that left out the undesirable parts of his real life. And it is one of the commonest miracles of conversion practiced by either men or women.—Corra Harris in the Saturday Evening Post.

BOY WHO WOULD NOT OBEY

Precocity of a New York Youth Was a Mighty Serious Problem For His Mother.

In a discussion on "Education," held the other afternoon at the headquarters of the National League for the Education of Women, Miss Jane Day, who is a "visiting teacher" of school 166, of which John Reigard is principal, told several stories of her experiences in her attempt to bring the school and the home into closer relationship.

"One thing which many of you upper class mothers don't understand," she explained, "is the superior precocity of the children of the poor. I remember going to call upon the mother of a boy whom his teachers had found quite incorrigible in school and asking her to make him behave himself.

"'And how can I make him behave himself in school, when he won't do it at home?' she demanded. 'Why, he doesn't care a bit about a thing I say. When I tell him to bring up the coal and take down the ashes he just laughs at me and tells me that he isn't fourteen and if I try to make him work he'll have the Gerry society after me for breakin' the child labor laws. Now, what can I be doing with a boy like that?'"

Prof. Chas. W. Stewart, the very well known musician of Logansport, doctored for kidney trouble for many years and still was not relieved. A friend advised him to take Foley Kidney Pills, which he did. He says: "They acted promptly, my backache left me, I gained strength, appetite improved, kidneys strengthened, and action became normal. Foley Kidney Pills entirely cured me." Dreier Drug Co.

THAT MOST WONDERFUL BABY

Surely Young Mother Had Good Reason to Be Proud of Her Remarkable Offspring.

It takes a baby to appreciate a baby—or a mother. A writer recounts the conversation between the mother of a very new baby and a caller who had professed a somewhat academic interest in the infant. It was immediately brought forth for inspection.

"You know," she exclaimed, "every mother thinks her baby is the best in the world, but mine just proves it."

"What does he do?"

"Everything."

"Does he walk?"

"Walk! Why, he's only six weeks old! But just let me hold him in my arms, and see how perfectly he executes the Highland fling."

"Er—can he say 'mamma?'"

"Oh, no. But he can imitate a steam engine."

"How?"

"He puffs out his little cheeks, so, and says 'Oo! Oo!'"

"Can he—er—crawl?"

"You silly man! Of course not; he's much too young."

"What else can he do?"

"Now, you watch him as I take him up in my arms. See how he smiles at me, and notice how intelligently he—breathes!"

Oldest Metal.

A recent paper presented to the Royal Institution at London, in discussing the question of the metals used by the great nations of antiquity, pointed out that gold was probably the first metal known to man because it is generally found native. The oldest metallic objects to which we can assign a probable date are thought to be those found in a royal tomb at Nagada in Egypt supposed to have been that of King Menes. In one of the chambers were some bits of gold and a bead, a button, and a fine wire of nearly pure copper. If the tomb has been properly identified, these objects are at least 6,800 years old. Nearly all the ancient gold that has been examined contains silver enough to give it a light color. It was gathered by the ancients in the bed of the Pactolus and other streams of Asia Minor.—Harper's Weekly.

SHORT STORIES WORTH READING

LEAP YEAR—A DEAD LETTER

"MYRTLE," I said to the stenographer, "don't you get mightily tired at times of pounding those old keys? That 'tum-tum-tum' of yours strikes me as the very essence of monotony."

Myrtle sighed one of those deep expressive sighs which tell the whole story without words. "Yes," she replied, "I do. Sometimes I feel as though I couldn't sit and take another dictation, and this typewriting gets so on my nerves that I can see the keys in my sleep. I suppose there is monotony in every business, but I'm so weary of this that any old kind of a change would look good to me."

"Now is your chance then! If you're not satisfied this is the banner year for making your escape from the slavery of business life."

She looked vaguely at me for a moment before she spoke. "What do you mean? I don't see how this year is any different from any other."

"You have forgotten," I declared. "This is leap year, you know!"

"Oh, I see what you mean," she laughed. "Who do you suppose would accept me?"

"Myrtle," I responded, with considerable fervor, "it is too easy. You are a clever young woman and a very pretty one. As a member of the male sex I must reply that I cannot conceive of a man who would not fall all over himself to say 'yes.'"

REJECTED AGAIN.

"Well," said she, "if any man sits around with his arms folded, waiting for me to ask him to marry me, he'll petrify while he's doing it. Any man who hasn't got courage enough to propose to the girl he loves certainly wouldn't have courage enough to get up in the morning when the mercury is ten below zero to make the fire. I wouldn't take such a man's love even to escape the drudgery of pounding a typewriter day after day for the rest of my natural life."

It was clearly up to me to prove to Myrtle that I possessed the required amount of courage, but instead of doing so I put on my hat and walked out.

In less than an hour I was being manicured. Ethel, the manicure girl, had always been particularly gracious to me—even more so, I thought, that to most of her other good customers.

"Ethel," I began, "what do you think of this leap year idea? Do you approve of it, or do you think it is a dead letter?"

"I never gave it much thought," was her reply, "but I guess it will be a cold day before I give any guy the chance to tell me that he'll be a brother to me. No man's going to make a fool out of me. Not yet a while, anyway."

"But suppose," I continued, "just for the sake of argument, that a real nice fellow—like me, for instance—loved you, and that he was too bashful to ask you to become his wife. If you loved him would it you be willing to help him out by taking advantage of the leap year prerogative?"

"I can't imagine any such case," said Ethel. "I never saw a man who didn't have sufficient nerve to propose to a woman if he wanted to. Many of them have nerve enough to propose to a good many, and some of them even have so much nerve that they defy the marriage laws and marry several."

"Undoubtedly there are such cases. I am a bashful man myself, you know."

She looked disdainfully at me. "Anyway, I never heard of a woman who passed sleepless nights waiting for leap year to come around or who took advantage of it when it did come. It might do all right for a woman who has grown so old that she has seen her last chance slip away from her, but I'm thankful to say that I'm not in that class yet.

By this time she had finished trimming my nails, and as another customer was waiting I had to go. I began thinking that asking a girl to become my wife and getting a girl to ask me to become her husband were equally impossible propositions.

It was Fate that sent the next girl into my path. I had always loved this girl, anyway. She was Josie, the little toe dancer, and the only germ of talent in the cast of a new comic opera which was trying to fight off inevitable disaster.

I had dined her and had danced attendance upon her on a number of occasions. Now, after we had exchanged a few words of greeting, I marched her to the first good restaurant I could find.

"Josie," I said, after our order had been given, "how many proposals of marriage do you average a day?"

"Some days I don't have a single proposal," pouted Josie. "Then, again, there are days when they just come in bunches."

"What do you do with them all?" was my next inquiry.

"Some of them I turn down flat, some of them I table for further consideration, some of them I put on probation, and some of them I accept."

"How do you mean you accept some of them?"

"Why, simply say 'Yes.' Then follows a dinner or two and the engagement is all off. Some of the chaps get jealous of other fellows, some of them go broke, and, I suppose, some of them don't find me to be as nice as they thought I was. Anyway, they always slip out of my life."

"Suppose," I argued, "that a man really loved you—a man who was too bashful to tell you. What kind of a chance to win you would he have with this crowd chasing after you and making proposals to you every time you turned around?"

"None at all," said Josie. "I'm a toe dancer, not a mind reader. Besides, a man has got to get into the crowd nowadays and do some shouting to let people know he's living. If you want anything in this world you've got to make an awful bid for it, and then the chances are some one else will get it because he made more noise bidding than you did. The little fellow who is afraid to say his soul is his own isn't wanted in this world. He ought to die and become an angel. Such men make good angels."

"What would you say," I queried, "if I should tell you that I was in love with you but was too bashful to ask you to marry me?"

"I should hate to tell you what I would say," she replied, "but it would hurt you a great deal more to know what I would think."

"Take my advice, Josie," I said. "Don't pay any attention to this crowd of stage-door 'Johnnies' here, but settle your mind on some good, steady chap like me and marry him. This is leap year, you know—get the kind of man you want!"

"That is excellent advice," was her comment. "When I see a man I want I'll think it over."

A little later I collided with Bob Ferguson, and Ferguson was the only man I would have taken into my confidence. He was always a good friend, because he was always brutally frank, and I do so love that quality in a male friend. In a woman, of course, one doesn't expect it.

"Bob," I exclaimed, "leap year is a dead letter. I have put it to a test, and I know positively that leap year doesn't mean any more to the average woman than the price of a new spring bonnet."

"And how came you to that conclusion?" he asked.

"Why," I answered, "I have spent the whole day calling on the eligible girls I know and giving them the most excellent openings for leap year proposals, but not one of them would rise to the occasion."

"That doesn't prove leap year to be a dead letter," he rejoined. "It only proves—it proves"—

"Well, what does it prove?" I asked in some heat.

"It might prove a variety of things, but in my humble opinion it proves, above everything else, the very excellent common sense of the young women you interviewed."

WHY NOT GET WELL?

TO ENJOY GOOD HEALTH MEANS NOT ONLY PHYSICAL COMFORT AND HAPPINESS, BUT IT IS A CONDITION ABSOLUTELY NECESSARY IN ORDER TO ATTAIN MATERIAL PROSPERITY OR SUCCESS IN BUSINESS.

Reduced Fees and Free Examination Until May 15th to All Who Are Interested in Getting Well

PHYSICAL OR MENTAL DECLINE, BODILY WEAKNESS and DISEASE are almost invariably the result of some violation of one or more of the laws of Nature. We may or may not be conscious of this fact, for in this day and age of hustle and scramble in order to as quickly as possible attain our aim in life; the simple but necessary laws of Nature—which are essential to health—are grievously overlooked, Nature's warnings are unheeded and disease results.

Mother Nature, always kindly and attentive to our welfare, will always warn us in some way that we should be more careful, and if we heed the warning as we should, with the same kindly care for our welfare she will usually straighten matters out to our satisfaction. On the other hand, if her warnings are ignored and we persist, a chronic diseased condition results, to remedy which takes a deeper study into the more complex laws of nature. Here, again, nature comes to our aid, for she has provided natural methods for the cure of these CHRONIC and DEEP-SEATED DISEASES.

I have for nearly sixteen years made a special study of these conditions and have discovered original methods which will CURE where the ordinary methods have resulted only in failure.

Long ago it occurred to me that many or most of the surgical operations could be avoided, if the nature of the disease was carefully studied and the proper treatment given. Working along this line, carefully studying every phase of the disease, limiting my investigation to a few diseases instead of trying to master all of them — my theory has been repeatedly proven and I am now in a position to satisfactorily treat and cure many diseases that have heretofore been considered incurable and impossible to be relieved only by the surgeon's knife—often maiming the patient for life and at best compelling them to undergo the nerve-wrecking horrors of the operating table. As an instance, after three unsuccessful surgical operations, I have cured a young man in a few weeks and without the loss of time and without pain of any kind. I have his letter on file as proof. I can cite you to many others very similar to this. Why suffer? Why put it off when it is such a simple matter to get cured? Life is too short and time is too precious to postpone attention to one's health.

EXAMINATION—My facilities for examination are unexcelled. I learn the exact condition of the rectum, the bladder and every organ of the genito-urinary system. This in itself is of the highest importance, inasmuch as a broken down nervous system and many or most of the troubles of the stomach, liver and kidneys, etc., are reflex and are the direct results of some pelvic lesion or disease.

TUBERCULOSIS, BRIGHT'S DISEASE, RHEUMATISM, etc., CURED by the use of intravenous medication and vaccines. Many hundreds saved from an UNTIMELY DEATH by these most recent and effective methods of combatting these dreadful scourges. Come in and investigate and hear what has been done for others. You will be surprised at the amazing results that have been attained in the treatment of these diseases that have heretofore been regarded as incurable. It will COST YOU NOTHING TO FIND OUT, and may be the means of saving your life. YOU CANNOT AFFORD TO DELAY.

NERVOUS BREAKDOWN and nearly all nervous diseases are the direct results of chronic or imperfectly treated Pelvic Diseases, such as Varicocele, Piles, Fistula, Stricture, etc. I not only remove the cause, but my many years of experience in the treatment of nervous and pelvic diseases enable me by my special methods to revitalize the entire nervous system and to restore to perfect health nearly all sufferers from nervous breakdown and vital weakness.

BLOOD POISON—I use only the most advanced methods in the treatment of blood poison and kindred diseases.

PROSTATIC ENLARGEMENT—This may result from a number of causes. The constant jarring and vibration of trains and trolley cars are a very potent cause. Bicycle riding and the use of riding implements on the farm are factors in producing this disease. In fact, the causes are so many and varied that fully 75 per cent. of all male adults are afflicted to a greater or lesser extent by this disease. The disease is so little understood, and as one of the principal symptoms is a pain in the back, it is usually called kidney trouble and treated with local applications or sedatives which can do no possible good whatever. I reduce the enlargement and have been able to cure about 90 per cent of all cases.

VARICOCELE—I cure Varicocele in a few days' or weeks' time without the use of the knife.

STRICTURE—I readily remove Stricture by my dissolvent method without the use of instruments.

RUPTURE, PILES, FISTULA, ETC., cured without detention from business and without the use of the knife.

If you live out of town write or write on what train you will arrive and I will arrange my engagements so that I can see you at once.

SHE BRINGS THEM TO THE MINISTER

Woman is Regular Accredited Marriage Agent in Omaha.

"DRUMS 'EM 'ROUND"

Omaha, May 9.—Mrs. Catherine Gibson, of this city, is a "matrimonial drummer." She drums up couples for the Rev. Charles W. Savidge to marry.

"Get married and let the Rev. Mr. Savidge perform the ceremony," is her injunction. "Dr. Savidge can tie the knot so much tighter than justices of the peace and other officials can."

Mrs. Gibson's headquarters are in the court house, and she spends most of her time within sight of the marriage license clerk. Occasionally she makes the rounds of the depots, watching for out-of-town couples.

"You can spot these people who come from the country to get married every time," the Rev. Mr. Savidge advised her. "They've got a look about them that cannot be mistaken. Very few of them know where to go, especially for a minister. They know they must get a license, but usually they have to ask where the court house is. And whenever you hear that question asked, get right after the couple; they want a marriage license and a preacher."

Mrs. Gibson also watches the engagement announcements in the newspapers and picks up many "customers" through them.

"I'm not trying to corner the marriage business in Omaha," says Dr. Savidge. "I have instructed Mrs. Gibson, when she finds that either the bride or the bridegroom is a member of a church to direct them to a minister of their own denomination; if, however, they have no choice, she sends them to me. I have found in thirty years in the ministry that those marriages performed by a minister hold tighter and last longer than do those performed by a civil officer. Perhaps it is because a minister spends more or less time in praying for and looking after the couples whom he joins. Perhaps it is because of the very fact that a religious atmosphere is thrown around a ceremony performed by a minister.

"Anyway, I have found that a large majority of the marriages which end disastriously were not performed by preachers. Therefore I feel that the work I am doing is done for humanity, not for myself."

Dr. Savidge has performed more than 3,000 marriages in Omaha and is known as the "Marrying Parson." With the fees he has founded and now maintains a home for old people—"House of Hope," he calls it—and there are now about fifty old people living there.

Mrs. Gibson is 20 years old, with wavy brown hair and brown eyes, dresses prettily and daintily and wears a cut little bowl-shaped hat. Sometimes the bride-elect looks daggers at her when she approaches the bridegroom-elect.

Twenty years ago Dr. Savidge resigned the pastorate of the most fashionable church in Omaha to organize a People's church, in order, he said, to reach a class of people not reached by fashionable churches. Since then he has worked independently of orthodox organizations.

Told by the Troubled Tourist

"SAW a straw hat yesterday. The first shot whistled harmlessly over the wearer's head, but I think the second got him," remarked the "Troubled Tourist."

"Funny what chances some of us will take rushing the season this way. Of course there is no special reason why a straw hat shouldn't be worn in January, for that matter, but somehow it has got to be a capital offence.

"Don't know who made the law, but personally I think it's a good one. It affords a little amusement to an otherwise jaded world and an easy death to the violator of Fashion's stern decree.

"Nevertheless it takes some degree of courage to wear one these balmy spring days, for the first straw hat man on the avenue always feels as though he had a mountain on his head and that every man and woman within half a dozen blocks of him is shouting, 'Pipe the lid! Shoot!'

"A new straw hat always feels bigger than a new boil on your neck, anyway. It has probably been that way ever since a dude cave man first made him a thatch of dried grass and paraded up and down whatever passed for Main street in the Stone Age. It was probably the pleasant little custom then to shy a club the size of a young tree at him, knocking off the offending thatch and a large portion of the head underneath.

"Seems funny that there are two things that the general public always considers legitimate prey. One is an umbrella and the other is the fresh-picked straw hat. The most popular treatment of the first straw hat of the season is to burn it. This never fails to be intensely amusing to everybody but the owner of the hat. The man who wears a straw hat out of season probably hasn't any sense of humor anyway. If he had he certainly wouldn't enter himself in the joke handicap.

"As a matter of reason the straw hat ought to be due about the time oysters disappear, but, instead of that, unwritten law compels us to wait till strawberry time for our airy adornment. The old saw about

"'Be not the first by whom the new is tried,
Nor yet the last to lay the old aside,' holds good in the case of the summer lid, for if you wear one too soon you are liable to battle, murder and sudden death, and if you don't put one on soon enough you are regarded with suspicion. So there you are.

"We are such creatures of habit that we've got to stick to the old derby till June 1—or whatever the blooming date is—no matter if the mercury is oozing out the top of the thermometer before that time.

"Ambitious persons desiring to wear a straw before that iron-clad date might arrange to get special permits for the same, on the same principle as the concealed weapon permit, and then wear the permit in conspicuous position on the hat. It might attract a little more attention, but no doubt the permit would be respected.

"They may carp and rail as they will at our changeable weather. It has nothing on our changeable hats."

TOWN BORN THREE TIMES.

Foundation For Third Effort Laid By Hopeful Man.

Larned, Kan., May 9.—For the third time in its history the town of Nettleton, between this place and Kinsley, on the main line of the Santa Fe, is to be rejuvenated. About twenty-five years ago a store, hotel and about a dozen dwellings were built there, but all were moved away when the boom collapsed in the later eighties.

About ten years ago a man named Abrahamson built and conducted a store there in an effort to get the town started, but the project shared a like fate. Now comes Frank Kettleson, of Kinsley and Spearville, who is erecting a two-story building at the place and will conduct the store and the elevator there in an effort to get the town off on the right foot.

He is going to try to make the town something besides a name on the Santa Fe folders.

POST CARD WILL IN BIG ESTATE

Administrator Who Filed Before Man Died in Charge.

WAS REPORTED DEAD

St. Louis, May 9.—A copy of the will written on a post card in New Orleans by Frank Dupler, formerly owner of a saloon at Seventh and Elm streets, was filed in the probate court here. It gives his $7,000 estate to a woman friend, Mrs. M. L. Pennington.

Harry Troll, public administrator, filed notice March 2 in court of the death of Duppler and that he would take charge of his estate. This was 17 days before Duppler died.

Duppler heard that he was dead from a St. Louis broker, to whom he wrote, asking that money be sent to him from a safe deposit vault. The broker wrote in reply that Troll had taken charge of the estate and consequently he could not send any money to the dying man.

When the copy of the will was filed Saturday, Troll again took charge there being no executor named. When asked how it happened that he took charge before Duppler died he said Miss Emma Hauser of 3740 South Grand avenue, a sister of Mrs. Duppler, who died two years ago, could explain.

Miss Hauser says she last saw Duppler in April, 1911, and that she heard he had died in Minneapolis. She conveyed this information to Troll and he notified the probate court. This was on March 2 and on March 18 Troll notified the court he had been unable to verify the report of Duppler's death in Minneapolis. The following day, March 19, Duppler died in New Orleans.

The post card will reads as follows: "I am in debt to M. L. Pennington for my life. If I die before I get to St. Louis, she is to bury me. My box in bank vault in St. Louis is to be given to her with contents. She has the key. Ten thousand dollars is what I owe her, and I want her paid first. My bills are settled elsewhere. I revoke all wills. I have a debt with M. L. Pennington that money cannot repay."

This will was dated March 16. The estate invoices $7018.50 in notes, cash and accounts. There are also some diamonds. In the box $354.50 in cash was found.

Duppler has a brother and sister living in Chicago who have not been heard from.

Mrs. N. J. McPike, 470 Huntington St., Wabash, had severe kidney trouble, resulting from catarrh, which apparently poisoned her entire system. While at its worst she began taking Foley Kidney Pills and says: "They seemed to give immediately relief. The first few doses stopped the backache, and eventually cured the inflammation and strengthened the kidneys. I cannot recommend them too highly." Dreier Drug Co.

The Quest of the Tropic Bird

By John Fleming Wilson

THE Oldest Journalist in the South Seas sat beside me on the hem of that rusty, much-folded cloak of lava which Punchbowl, the volcano, once flung over the white coral body of lovely Oahu. Just beyond us, the efflorescent surf broke in charming billows of lace over the velvety sand and seemed to lift with its onrush the edge of the heavy scoriac mantle at our feet. Overhead the trade wind boomed and thundered among the echoing clouds. In our eyes was the shimmer of the sea, the glamour of the vapory sky, shot through now and then by a shuttling silver gull. We were at peace over our pipes.

"There is an article in the encyclopedia," he remarked, "which tells nothing worth knowing about that bird. There is a man who knows the truth. He spent ten years in learning it and he finally succeeded, with the help of a woman. Once a year she sends me a handkerchief with two slender crimson feathers embroidered by her own hand in one corner of it, to show me that she remembers that she and I sat on this ledge and watched the sky for her happiness."

"And it came?" I ventured.

"In the form of a contribution to science," he replied. "It began with two feathers lying in the calloused palm of an ex-whaling skipper, and it ended ten years later in an article in a scientific magazine, so far as the world is concerned; but, so far as I am concerned, in two feathers embroidered on a handkerchief."

"And the name of the bird?" I suggested.

"Phaëthon rubricauda," he replied.

He drew from an inside pocket of his white jacket a large silk handkerchief which he spread out on his knees with a delicate sweep of lean fingers. I saw the crimson embroidery on it of two slender feathers, worked side by side in the sheen of the silk. Underneath, in blue thread, I saw this:

E. 171° 34′ 11″—S. 22° 29′ 49″

"That is our secret, the climax of our ten years' watching. I will tell you."

And this was the story he told:

Thirty years ago, Captain Edward Haines was one of the wealthiest traders in this ocean and his house in Honolulu was a palace. His daughter Gertrude was a strange beauty to be granted so hard-fisted, loud-mouthed an ignoramus as old Haines, who could barely move about in his own drawing-room without smashing something and whose education was got out of an ancient Bowditch. The answer to the puzzle was, of course, her mother. She married Haines in Philadelphia, presented him with Gertrude, and departed to a quieter world. But I've heard Gertrude speak of her. She told me she was very lovely, quite the lady, and I judge that she was unfit to be the mate of so blustery a fellow as the ex-whalersman.

Not that Haines didn't do his duty by the girl, as he saw it. He sent her on the Flying Cloud clear to New York for her schooling, kept her in money, and wrote her a letter once in six months, beginning "Yrs duley rec'd" and ending with the prodigious scrawl of his name. When she was eighteen years old he sent for her to come back to the islands, and in the interval before her arrival he built the mansion on Punahou.

This was a gay city in those days, and it wasn't long till Gertrude Haines ruled it with a somewhat austere scepter. For if she had inherited her mother's gentle beauty, she had also much of her father's strong fiber.

All this gave great satisfaction to Haines. It suited his rough pride that his daughter should scorn those whom he scorned; if she went further and rejected the advances of men whom he respected and thought worthy of her, men with parcels in schooners and islands of shell, he accepted it as a fresh proof of her superiority and boasted of it to the fallen faces of the snubbed.

His pride had a tumble when Thomas Jenkins arrived on the scene with a box of books, spectacles, a silk hat, and a job teaching Natural Science at Punahou College; for that impecunious, self-contained, single-minded genius not only fell in love with Gertrude Haines (as we all had done) but affected her haughty spirit to the point where she learned new songs to sing to him bending over her guitar in the evenings.

The worthy captain's confidence in his daughter's distaste for all men blinded him awhile. But he woke up one day to discover that Jenkins, the wholly ineligible, held a place in Gertrude's heart that none other did or could, even himself. His wrath was terrific. All King Street resounded to his vociferous threats. He confronted Jenkins and forbade him the place. To his amazement, the petty professor of Natural Science refused to be so summarily dismissed, referred to Miss Haines, spoke calmly of "social position" and "regard for Gertrude's feelings." Haines sent for the girl and roared at her his orders to send Jenkins away forever. He was dumbfounded when she flatly denied his authority. "I have some duties as hostess," she informed her raging parent. "Mr. Jenkins has conducted himself most becomingly. He will be a welcome guest so far as I am concerned."

"But he wants to marry you and get my money!" the old fellow bawled.

Here Jenkins stepped in. Really, the lad had plenty of ballast. He faced the ex-whaler with the calmness of a man thoroughly in earnest and unabashed.

"I've never asked your daughter to marry me," he said quietly. "But you are quite right in saying that I wish her for my wife. You are wrong as to the money. I don't want it and wouldn't accept it, my dear sir, much as I respect you. I have my profession."

Imagine Haines' dumb anger. He stared (yes, I was there) from Gertrude to Jenkins and then from the professor to his daughter. Finally, he found words: "Your perfession!" he shouted at him. "What is that? Teaching natives to read?"

Jenkins smiled. "I might do worse than that," he remarked. "But I am a scientist. In time I shall publish a book. Then I shall ask your daughter to marry me."

Jenkins didn't see anything out of the way in asserting that he would demand the hand of the richest girl in Hawaii nei. In fact, he distinctly gave us to understand that he considered himself fully Gertrude's equal socially and financially. It was something new for the rough skipper and he took another tack. "What's this book about?" he demanded. "Sugar? Shell? Anything useful? Any money in it?"

"It's about birds," Jenkins answered him firmly. "The birds of these regions have never been studied with thoroughness. I've already found many new species and one new genius. I shall be famous."

All this time Gertrude had stood in the shadow, staring at Jenkins with a look in her eyes that neither I nor any other man had ever seen there. Now she stepped out and spoke bravely: "Papa, you don't understand. Back in Philadelphia everybody would recognize Mr. Jenkins' work. He will be famous some day."

Haines shook his huge head. "Do you love that fellow?" he bellowed at her.

The professor intervened, like the gentleman he was. "You have no right to ask that question," he told him bluntly. "I've never dared ask her myself. But it's my privilege to put that question to her." He turned to her quietly and with a profound longing in his eyes. "Some day I'll ask you that," he said. "When I have succeeded. Not till then. But when I have a name to offer you I hope—maybe—you may——"

Gertrude blushed. I surmised then what that answer would be. Haines, on the other hand, grasped at a straw. "What is this big thing you expect to do?" he demanded. "What great task are you at that will ever justify you in trying to marry my girl?"

Jenkins caught the defiance and the sarcasm, but he answered the skipper without a trace of embarrassment. "I'm working on the habits of the Phaëthon rubricauda. It's not known where they breed."

"Phaethon ruby cauder," repeated Haines blankly. "What's that?"

Gertrude looked up. "It's the scientific name for the tropic bird, papa," she told him. "The one you get the red feather from that costs so much and you sell the queen for her ornaments."

This ended that conversation. Haines retired, in a brown study. Gertrude timidly shook Jenkins' hand, excused herself to me, and followed her father into the house. I walked back to town with the professor. "I guess you've beat us all out, Jenkins. She's a fine girl, the finest I know of," I said.

He came down from the clouds long enough to shake my hand and say, "I must get to work harder than ever. The father is impossible. I don't see how she endures his ignorance and self-sufficiency. But I hope soon to solve the mystery of the Phaëthon rubricauda and then I'll ask her to marry me."

"I thought you asked her to-night to be your wife," I said, a little acidly.

"It wouldn't be fair," he calmly responded. "I'm not prepared as yet to marry."

The next day I met Haines. He stopped me and drew me to the edge of the pavement. "Look here," he said curtly. "Gertrude thinks she wants to marry that bird catcher. What is his phaethon ruby cauder?"

I explained and he pondered this for a full five minutes, wiping his ruddy forehead constantly. Then he dived into a pocket and hauled out two crimson feathers. "Are these the feathers he's after?" he inquired. "They're worth two reals a pair and they're pretty scarce. Did he say he could find them? Find where they breed?"

"He did," I replied.

The old chap's face took on a shrewd expression. He looked me straight in the eye. "Do you know anything about it?"

I was truthful. "I know nothing," I assured him. "I never took too much interest in birds, anyway. But Jenkins seems determined to find out all he can about this tropic bird and, if he does find out their breeding ground, I suppose he can get all the feathers he wants."

Haines studied this over and shook his head. "Gertie has always been square with me," he said slowly. "But she says she intends to marry that scamp if he gets what he's after. She promised me she wouldn't look at him again if he didn't make good. Now where do you reckon them birds make their nests?"

I didn't know, of course. I sugested that Jenkins was the man to give that information. Haines grumbled and went on his way.

Two days later the professor met me with beaming eyes. "I have cruelly misjudged Captain Haines," he said, most informally. "The man is really interested in scientific ornithology. He sent for me and asked me a lot of questions. Now he is going to help me in my work. I am just going to see about leave of absence from my studies at the college."

It appeared that Haines had summoned Jenkins to his office and there demanded of him all that he knew about the tropic bird. "I told him it was migratory," the professor narrated proudly, "though it had never been proved, and that it was a mistake to say that it was found only between the tropics. I told him I was sure that the specimens found here were from a nesting place possibly many hundreds of miles away, whither they returned at certain times of the year. He wished to know where I thought this place was, and when I told him I reckoned it to be far south of the equator the generous old man offered to give me a schooner and outfit and let me go find it. I leave next week."

"What schooner did he give you?"

"The Haleákalá," he answered simply.

When he had gone his way, I relieved my feelings by going down and staring at the Haleákalá, which had already been hauled into a berth for refitting. You never heard of her. She belonged to a time long past. In the early days she was well known, but even close-fisted Haines had been forced to lay her up for lack of men to sail her. She was old, rotten, weedy, twisted, tender, unseaworthy as an overripe pumpkin. I suppose she had swung in the warm tides of Pearl Harbor for a good five years when Haines offered her to the sadly benighted professor.

Nothing of this penetrated Jenkins' head. He made Honolulu ring with praises of Haines. Even Gertrude, who loved him, didn't dare interfere and tell him the Haleákalá was a floating coffin and would never last to get him anywhere but to a quick and painful death. Then again, you see, Jenkins had offered this as the price of her marrying him—that he should do this thing; and she wasn't the woman to lower her value a penny.

Haines actually spent quite a bit of money on apparatus for the "Haines Ornithological Expedition," buying supplies lavishly and instruments that Jenkins thought he might require.

As it was impossible to get a good crew for such a craft, even for a short voyage, and as it was known that the Haleákalá was bound for the other side of the equator, Haines put a drunken Portuguese aboard as master and gave him for hands a choice collection of Iwilei waifs, allowing them the alternative of spending five years on an out-island plantation.

Two months passed and the skipper of the Haleákalá and three men turned up per schooner from the Gilberts, and reported that their vessel had foundered three hundred miles offshore with the loss of Thomas Jenkins and the cook. The papers gave several columns of the survivors' story of the ill-fated "Haines Ornithological Expedition," the faculty of Punahou passed appropriate resolutions, and Haines chuckled savagely over his cigar, though he loudly professed regret over the loss of his excellent friend Jenkins and his fine schooner and her valuable cargo. Gertrude put the guitar away in its case, very simply told us that she wouldn't receive us any more as she didn't feel well, and retired into herself.

A year after the Haleákalá left Honolulu, Captain Haines called me into his office and said stumblingly, "I made a mistake, I guess, in sending that science fellow off in that schooner. Gertie won't speak to me. I'm getting kind of old and the house is awful dull. She says I killed him. I wish you'd drop up to the house and tell Gertie——" He was too late. What it was he wanted me to tell the girl no one will ever exactly know, for his face got purple, he stared at me with an astonished look in his eyes, and slid heavily from his chair to the floor, dead of apoplexy.

So the papers had more columns, this time describing the romantic life and wonderful prosperity of the ex-whaling captain. Then he passed out of Honolulu gossip and his memory remained only in the aching heart of the woman who kept sorry house out Punahou way.

Gertrude, whom few of us had seen that year, came freshly to mind, no longer as the lovely hostess and the desirable wife, but as the shrewdest business woman south of the North Pole. But the father of her was in the ascendant and she took over his large properties, his vessels, his islands, his trading stations, his plantations, and delved into their management and mastered their intricacies till half Honolulu was traveling to the door of the big office to ask Haines wahine (so they called her) how to do this and what to do there. Six months after Edward Haines was laid away in Kawaiahao, Gertrude was running the old business with double the old energy and success. Men who dealt with her shook their heads and remarked that she was no fool. So I was amazed one afternoon, when I had walked out to one of her favorite spots for the air, to find her lying on her face sobbing into her hands.

I asked her what the matter was. "It's none of my business," I told her plainly, "but I think just enough of you to feel badly when you come out here to cry. What is it?"

I shan't tell you what she said, more than to state that Gertrude Haines hadn't forgotten in business the poor scientist who had started out so joyously two years before to find out where the Phaëthon rubricauda has its nesting place. And she hadn't given up hope that he was alive and thinking of her. I told her what her father had started to say when he was stricken with apoplexy. You ought to have seen her pretty forehead wrinkle and her lips quiver. "Papa meant to tell me something about Tom," she announced after long cogitation. "Tom is alive, somewhere down south. The next question is to find him."

She was so happy in the thought that I dared not say a word to wither her joy. I knew it was foolish to be silent, but men have gladly done foolish things before now, when a woman was concerned. "I'll find him," she told me. "Tom will send me word. He's a scientist and he'll know what to do. I'm so glad he explained some things to me."

"What things?" I demanded bluntly.

"About the Phaëthon rubricauda," she replied. "You see, he was to send me a message when he found out the place." She jumped up, all excitement. "And I've never tried to do my part, either," she exclaimed. "And he may have sent me word!"

Next day word went out from the Haines office that the red tail feathers of tropic birds—Phaëthon rubricauda—were doubled in price for two months. Half native Honolulu bestirred itself to go around and ask Gertrude if this were so.

The two months passed and the offer was renewed, this time indefinitely. The year saw crimson feathers piled in bales in the Haines warehouse as schooner after schooner from the south reported in, and still Gertrude kept the price up, to the amazement and horror of rival houses who swore that no market in the world could absorb the supplies she pitched into it. The rumors grew that Miss Haines had lost her mind. Loyal skippers and devoted traders grumbled at orders to pick up any birds that could be got and, if necessary, to stop in mid-ocean to capture one.

Imagine a slender, sunburned man, with a reddish beard and no clothes to speak of.—

One day, she brought me past Waikiki to this spot, the place where I first found her, crying. It was here that we sat, as you and I are doing now. And just the same way just the same bird appeared suddenly out there and swept overhead. It seemed to please Gertrude beyond all reason. "He mightn't have got there last year," she said in her puzzling way. "But this year I'll surely hear from him."

I suppose my blank looks informed her that I was at sea, for she laughed and explained: "That is the first tropic bird to cross the pali this year. Tom told me they nest somewhere down south and each year go back there. When the nesting season is over the birds fly north again. I come out here every day and that's the first I've seen this year. See!" she cried, "there's another one. They are flying up from the south. Surely I'll hear from Tom this year. I know he will find the island where they breed and he'll send me up word by one of them, by cutting a little from its tail feathers or tying a message to its leg, like they do with carrier pigeons."

For five years the Haines schooners picked up tropic birds and delivered crimson feathers to the big office in Honolulu. In all that time came never a word from Tom Jenkins. But Gertrude, now a mature and beautiful woman of twenty-five, still smiled when people remarked on her infatuation for the Phaëthon rubricauda and she continued to order her skippers and traders to keep a sharp eye out for the red-billed tropic bird. Then Norton, old and grizzled, came into port on a fine morning, dropped his hook and scurried ashore to drive furiously out to Punahou. An hour later Gertrude sent for me. When I got out there she was pacing up and down the lanai, her face alight with happiness, expectation, and eagerness. "It's come!" she cried out to me.

"The message?" I demanded.

She burst into tears and I took from her hand a thin bit of shell with two tiny holes in it through which ran a filament of fish sinew. I fancy the film of mother-of-pearl was about an inch long and half an inch broad. Scratched on it I read this:

FOLLOW RUBRICAUDUS
SEPT. T. JENKINS——

The girl was beyond power of speech and I studied the little inscription in the light of what I knew, till she had recovered herself. "What does it mean?" I asked.

"It means that he has thought of me all these years," she said. "And he knew that I would never forget and I'd be anxious. He's succeeded. This is the proof of it."

I brought her back to the subject. "What does this writing mean? How do you know it is from him—after all these years? How did you get it?"

She sat down and gazed out toward the waving palm fronds. "Captain Norton picked the bird up off Maui," she said slowly. "This was tied to its leg. I know it is from Tom because it is signed with his name and because he always explained that these birds were homers and if one had once been to Hawaii it would come back after the nesting season, no matter how far away the island was. He's found the island where they nest. That's where he is now. And I must go to him, for he hasn't any vessel and no way of coming home."

At first this seemed simple enough, till I recalled that no one knew where this island, or islands, were, and the slight message seemed to me to give little clew except the direction "follow south." All this I made plain to her, but she was undaunted.

In the morning she sent for me to come to her office. I found her amidst the orderly, austere environs of her great business. Clerks plodded through invoices and posted books within a few feet of her. "I've thought it all out," she told me. "This is only April. We must wait till September. Tom is right. I've watched them and they don't start back south till nearly October. We must follow them."

But it was the fifth of September when the Mariana with Norton in command and Gertrude and I on deck, slipped out of Honolulu and headed south on the final quest for the home of Phaëthon rubricauda.

It was a strange voyage. We dropped like a stone down the blue Pacific latitudes, under roaring skies till we lost the trades and entered that region where the percentage of calm days marked on the charts jumps from nothing up to disheartening figures; where the sea runs in vast, silent currents, rippled by faint breaths, torn by fierce squalls, driven in headlong floods by living gales.

September passed, and October and November, and we still sailed blindly south, now veering far to the westward after some vagrant bird, now driving full east because a floating phaëthon, high in the clear air, seemed leisurely headed on that course.

January passed and February came. We had crossed the line and Norton, muttering savagely over his slate, was reckoning the days till we should reach the other tropic. "Beyond that there's no need for us to go," he swore. "Nobody ever saw one of them redbills farther north than Capricorn nor farther south than Cancer. It's no use, Miss Gertrude; you can't change nature."

"I'm glad of it," she would say cheerfully. "For Professor Jenkins knows that, and we can trust him. We must go south."

On the second day of March Norton made his longitude in the afternoon, scowled at the slate and called Gertrude. "I may as well tell you that this business is ended," he told her gruffly. "Our stores are getting low. We haven't seen a tropic bird for a week, and it's been two months since we saw any to amount to anything. Miss Gertrude, we've got to quit."

Gertrude showed us a face ravaged by grief. It was awful, the haggardness that had overtaken her. Youth and bloom seemed to have fled. Her voice had lost its gentle purity. "Please help me find him!" she cried.

The next morning Norton called me before dawn, tiptoeing into my berth. "I think we've got a hint," he whispered to me. "Come on deck."

I followed him and he showed me a newly fledged bird lying on the hatch which showed by the lantern's light strange markings on its back, like arrowheads. I looked at him for an interpretation. "That's a young one, a young redbill," he remarked. "Miss Gertrude once sent me on a three months' cruise to find where they could be got. This one hit the rigging and the cook caught it. We can't be far from their nests."

We didn't call Gertrude, but Norton carefully headed the Mariana up close to the wind. "Those young ones can't fly against any breeze," he remarked. "So that island must be to windward."

At daybreak Gertrude came on deck and we told her of our discovery. She went over and put the little fledgling into her warm breast and smiled at us.

The next few days brought us little encouragement, but within the week the Mariana slowly forged into the edge of the southeast trades and borne on their powerful current we saw clouds of roseate birds. We caught some of the weaker ones and found them all marked with the telltale arrows.

Our excitement was intense. The fresh winds blowing out of the cold antarctic, softened as they were by sweeping over hundreds of leagues of warm sea, toned us up and drove away all lassitude. We scanned the horizon for land, searched the sky for signs of some reflection that would tell us in what quarter to seek for it. And on the twelfth day of March we found it, a slight, shimmering spot on the sea line.

Norton headed the Mariana to windward of it and all day we stemmed a stiff current, gradually raising the island till we saw that it was very small, rocky, and apparently desolate. Gertrude stood in the forerigging, swinging now outboard, now inboard as the vessel heeled over to the lift of the sea. Night fell and Norton took in sail so that we should not overrun the spot in darkness.

It was noon when the Mariana weathered the southeastern point and we wore ship and stood down to leeward. Here the islet bore a different aspect. It was still rocky, but a small indentation ran in to a narrow beach. The color of the water showed that there was plenty of depth clear up under the cliff. "No holding ground there, the skipper said. "We'll send a boat ashore."

With no more words a boat was cleared away and into it Norton, Gertrude, and I got with a couple of hands. As we pulled away from the Mariana, which had been our home for so long, I felt a sudden distaste for the whole affair.

It was calm in the lee of islet and we quickly made the bight and the little slender shore. We were startled to see a man standing on the edge of the water, evidently trying to launch some sort of boat.

Imagine a slender, sunburned man with a reddish beard and no clothes to speak of, a spindle-shanked, deep-ribbed fellow, with short-sighted eyes. That was the man who came forward and croaked at us on that little shore, leaving his queer canoe or whatever it was to toss in the edge of the gentle surf. Only Gertrude knew that it was Jenkins. She gazed at him with all her eyes, quivering. And he said, "Did you get my message?"

"I came as soon as I could," she said.

Norton broke in here with his hoarse tones. "Are you the professor? What have you had to eat on this God-forsaken rock?"

Jenkins shook his head. "There wasn't any way of starting a fire."

Well, that was about the gist of it. The great romance dwindled into a tragedy: years without a fire or a light or soft food; huddling in the darkness, shivering in the chill, defenseless, houseless, solitary, he had existed from season to season, scratching his brief messages on splinters of shell which he tied to the tropic birds in the hope that they might reach Gertrude and tell her that he had succeeded and lived.

On the Mariana we fitted him out with clothes and Norton even dug up an old pair of spectacles that helped his sight. Then Gertrude came to him and asked coldly, "Is there anything on the island that you want to take with you?"

"Nothing," he told her. "Nothing at all. What is the longitude and latitude?"

Norton figured it for him and the result was what is embroidered on my handkerchief. "I'm glad to know that," the professor said gently. "I tried for three years to figure it out but having no instruments I couldn't even approximate it."

It seems that Jenkins (from his story) had been abandoned on the leaking Haleákalá and sticking to the water-logged craft, had finally come ashore on some forsaken island where his most careful investigation failed to discover any signs of human habitation. The cook, who had stayed with him, died from eating some poisonous fish. Jenkins decided that he could move on, having a poor, ramshackle small boat left him on the now derelict schooner. Instead of returning north, he continued his search and headed south, feeling that his sole hope lay in reaching the nesting place of the Phaeton rubricauda and thence sending messages till one was received. It took him years of arduous and incredible voyaging to find the island where we had come upon him. He had sailed in the small boat, from reef to island and from island to reef, till it had fallen to pieces under him. Strange, barbarous people had fed him and tried to keep him with them. He had sailed on, in canoes, on rafts, on floating logs, always south, always in the direction from which he saw the fledgling tropic birds come. So he finally, to cut an interminable story short, reached this rocky islet. There he stayed, daily trying to catch another bird to which to affix the massage he had scratched on a shell; eating raw flesh, devouring raw eggs, sleeping in the open, trying to keep himself alive till he should be able to return.

All this he told us very simply and briefly that night as the Mariana headed north with the trades in the belly of her sails. And when he had finished Gertrude leaned forward and said softly, "Tom, didn't you know I would come?"

"No," he answered quietly.

"But you sent me a message—messages. Didn't you think I would answer them and come?"

He seemed hugely embarrassed. "I did. I—I hoped you might get some of them. But I didn't know you would come, Miss—Gertrude."

She seemed appalled at the outcome of her quest. Here she was, after ten years, facing the man she loved, whom she had rescued from death on a lonely islet by almost miraculous effort and tenacity. And he told her he didn't know she would come!

"What were you going to do, professor," she inquired quietly, "if nobody came and found you?"

He rose. "Oh, I had built a boat! I was coming back," he said. "I worked on my little canoe all this last year."

"Back where?" she demanded. "And how? How could you get back? It's more than two thousand miles to Honolulu."

"I was coming back the way I came," he answered gravely. "It took me several years to reach the island. I hoped to get back in two."

"But why did you keep on, after the schooner went ashore and the men had deserted you? Why didn't you try to come back to civilization instead of running deeper into an uncharted ocean?"

"Have you forgotten?" he asked with a sudden intensity in his voice. "Have you forgotten?"

She seemed to waken at the tone. "Forgotten what?" she demanded huskily.

"That I couldn't ask you to be my wife till I had succeeded. That was the promise I made. It was the condition on which your father gave me the schooner. I couldn't go back, for I should have lost you. I came on."

"You came on—a thousand miles—years—all alone!" she whispered. "All that you could ask me to marry you?"

"That is true," he said gently. "And when I had succeeded I was trying to start back—for you."

She answered him never a word while she thought, bright-eyed, finger on lip. What did she think about? I suppose she saw in fancy this gaunt, haggard, lean scientist, deserted by a drunken crew, a rotten schooner broken up under his feet, still pushing on across an unknown and desolate sea, paddling himself in a toppling canoe under broiling suns, battling for life in the welter of tempest-driven tides, always looking up for the crimson flash of the bird whose nesting place he must find.

When she spoke again she said haltingly, "And you didn't know I would come?"

He shook his head. "You sent me no message, you didn't tell me you cared."

She broke out in a cry of understanding. "I could have sent you a message! And I didn't know . . . of course . . . what must you have thought . . . but you were coming back?"

"Yes," he answered. "But you sent no word by the birds, for I watched them each season and I knew some of them had been in Honolulu and seen you, and yet none of them bore any message."

Of course it was true. If the Phaëthon rubricauda went one way, it would return the other. Ridiculous, wasn't it, that it never occurred to us? But she was satisfied. "Tom," she whispered, "I never thought of it. So I came myself . . . are you sorry? . . . Tom . . . "

As I rejoined Norton by the wheel I thought I heard a whir overhead, the soft speeding of a tropic bird out of the deep south into the blooming north. Norton must have heard the same noise, for he grinned at me across the binnacle and said, "Now we'll follow them home."

"And the professor wrote his book?" I inquired.

"Yes, and articles for the encyclopedias and magazines. But you won't find the position of that island in any of 'em," said the Oldest Journalist. "Gertrude says that is their island. She sends me a handkerchief each year to remind me where it lies."

GRAIN AND PROVISIONS.

Chicago Market.

Chicago, Ill., May 9.—Delay to seeding in North Dakota formed a source of apprehension to the wheat speculators today and tended to make the market advance. July started at $1.13⅝ to $1.13¾ and rose to $1.14⅜@1.14½.

Despite a big decline in stocks at Minneapolis, the market afterward reacted. Closing prices, however, were strong, with July 1½c net higher at $1.14½@1.14⅝.

Corn went higher in sympathy with wheat. July opened at 77⅞c to 78c, and climbed to 78¼@78⅝c.

Prices hardened further, owing to reports that a fifth of the corn planted in Oklahoma had rotted. The close was firm, ½@⅝c up for July at 78¾@78½c.

A good general call for oats lifted that cereal. July started at 54¼c to 54⅝c, and ascended to 54¾c.

Provision trade seemed to be evenly divided on both sides of the market. Initial sales with September delivery were $19.70 to $19.72½ for pork, $11.22½ to $11.25 for lard and $10.75 for ribs.

STOCKS AND BONDS.

The Day on Wall Street.

New York, May 9.—Influenced in part by the reduction of the British bank rate, the local stock market developed a fair degree of strength at today's opening. Reading soon advanced a full point with substantial gains in such other leaders as United States Steel and Amalgamated Copper. Bethlehem Steel preferred rose a point. There was some weakness in St. Paul and a few of the minor issues.

Increased strength was shown in the first hour, although the movement embraced a number of unimportant issues. United States Steel, Amalgamated Copper, American Smelting and American Can all advanced a full point, with a further rise in Bethlehem Steel preferred and a smart gain in the common. Lehigh Valley, Louisville & Nashville, Northern Pacific and Missouri Pacific were the features of the railway group, Reading displaying some pressure, but later shared in the general rise. Stocks were offered at the advance, but without material effect on prices.

Trading became dull in the second hour with a very slight yielding of prices from their best. St. Paul not only recovered its early loss, but sold above yesterday's high prices. Bonds were steady.

A severe slump in Illinois Central, which sold down to 121⅛, its lowest price in almost four years, was mainly ascribed to the severe damage incurred by the road as a result of the Missippi valley floods. Prices relaxed generally in the last hour when a large percentage of early gains was lost, the reaction running from 1 to 1½ points in the more important issues.

Sense of Smell.

The tenth part of a grain of musk will continue for years to fill a room with its odoriferous particles, and at the end of that time it will not be appreciably diminished in weight.

A cubic inch of air arising from the flame of a Bunsen burner has been found to contain no fewer than four hundred and eighty-nine million dust particles.

A drop of blood that might be suspended from the point of a needle contains about a million of red corpuscles.

Yet, although matter is so marvelously divisible, the olfactory nerves are infinitely more sensitive. Much yet remains to be investigated with reference to these nerves which discriminate with such apparently miraculous accuracy.—Harper's Weekly.

Chess, and the Game of Life.

An Indian philosopher thus describes chess: "It is a representative contest, a bloodless combat, an image not only of actual military operation, but of that greater warfare, which every son of the earth, from the cradle to the grave, is continually waging—the battle of life." She sees clearly that, even going back to its birth, the parallelism between chess and men exists, for does anybody know just when, where and how the first man appeared on earth? Also, is it not a fact that man's attributes and nature have remained unchanged throughout centuries, and that chess was played much in the same way, each chessman moving in its allotted manner even five thousand years ago?

SATSUMA ORANGES.

A splendid income can easily be made by planting a grove of Satsuma Oranges. These Satsuma Oranges produce an income after the fourth year of $300.00 to $700.00 per acre. Many grow much higher. Crops can be grown between the trees, which will more than pay for your land, the planting of the orange trees, fences, etc.

As I am going to plant 40 acres of Satsuma Oranges myself I would be very glad to talk the matter over and give facts and figures to anyone interested.

HAMMOND TO GET BIG STEEL PLANT

Syndicate Plans Mills to Cost $11,000,000 and Employ 5,000.

BUYS A GREAT TRACT

Chicago, May 9.—A modern steel plant to cost in the neighborhood of $11,000,000, which will furnish employment to about 5,000 hands, is planned for Hammond, Ind.

This immense project, it is predicted, will mean the eventual establishment of Hammond as one of the largest and most important cities in Indiana, and a three-fold increase within three or four years of its present population—60,000.

The location of another steel plant in the Calumet region—as this district is known—is made possible through the purchase by Ferdinand Schlesinger, well known ore man of Milwaukee, and his associates, from the East Chicago company, of a tract of 415 acres within the city limits of Hammond for a price said to be in excess of $500,000.

Negotiated by Hotchkiss.

The purchase of the land was negotiated by C. W. Hotchkiss, formerly general manager of the Chicago, Indiana and Southern railroad, now president of the Illinois Tunnel company, who was instrumental in locating the Baldwin Locomotive works plant at Calumet, East Chicago.

The land acquired by the Schlesinger syndicate is bounded by the drainage canal and Wolf Lake on the north, White Oak avenue on the east, One Hundred and Forty-third street on the south and Calumet avenue on the west.

The syndicate will start construction work on the plant soon after July 1, upon the completion of necessary street improvements by the municipal authorities. It is expected that two years will be needed to complete the proposed plant, the product of which will be similar to that of the Inland Steel company, of Indiana Harbor.

To Complete Canal.

In connection with the purchase of this tract by the syndicate it is obligatory upon the part of the selling company to complete as soon as possible the Indiana Harbor ship canal west to Wolf Lake. This work, which has been in progress for some time, necessitates the dredging of the canal to a depth of twenty-one feet, with a width of 200 feet at the surface and eighty-four feet at the bottom.

Besides canal privileges, the contemplated plant will have excellent land shipment facilities, being served by the New York Central, the Baltimore and Ohio, the Pennsylvania, the Chicago and Northwestern, the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul, the Indiana Harbor Belt, the Pere Marquette and Wabash railroads.

Many Neighboring Industries.

Within a radius of two miles of the site of the proposed plant are hundreds of industries of all characters, employing thousands. Among these are included the following concerns: Baldwin-Locomotive works, 15,000 employes; Buckeye Steel Castings company, 2,500; Standard Steel company, 5,500; Simplex Railway Appliance company, 750; W. B. Conkey company, 1,400; American Steel Foundries, 1,500; Republic Iron and Steel company, 1,500; Standard Forgings company, 600; Universal Portland Cement company, 2,000; Grasselli Chemical company, 800; Interstate Iron and Steel company, 1,500; Western Car and Foundries company, 3,000; Standard Oil company, 2,000.

INDIGESTION IS ENDED FOREVER

No Heartburn, Gas, Dyspepsia or Sourness Five Minutes Later.

Nothing will remain undigested or sour on your stomach if you will take a little Diapepsin occasionally. This powerful digestive and antacid, though as harmless and pleasant as candy, will digest and prepare for assimilation into the blood all the food you can eat.

Eat what your stomach craves, without the slighest fear of Indigestion or that you will be bothered with sour risings, Belching, Gas on Stomach, Heartburn, Headaches from stomach, Nausea, Bad Breath, Water Brash or a feeling like you had swallowed a lump of lead, or other disagreeable miseries. Should you be suffering now from any stomach disorder you can get relief within five minutes.

If you will get from your pharmacist a 50-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin you could always go to the table with a hearty appetite, and your meals would taste good, because you would know there would be no Indigestion or Sleepless nights or Headache or Stomach misery all the next day; and, besides, you would not need laxatives or liver pills to keep your stomach and bowels clean and fresh.

Pape's Diapepsin can be obtained from your druggist, and contains more than sufficient to thoroughly cure the worst case of Indigestion or Dyspepsia. There is nothing better for Gas on the Stomach or sour odors from the stomach or to cure a Stomach Headache.

You couldn't keep a handier or more useful article in the house. adv

Today in History.

May 9, 1846, the Mexican army invading Texas picked a dry river bed known as Resaca de la Palma as a good place to fight the advancing American army under General Taylor. The American dragoons charged the Mexican gunners and drove the greasers helter skelter back across the Rio Grande.

LETTER AIDS DIVORCE.

Was About Domestic Affairs, But Made Lot of Trouble.

Reading, Pa., May 9.—Charles A. Hamm, of Reading, has been granted a divorce from his wife, Anna, now a student nurse in Philadelphia. The pair lived happily until the wife, while on a visit to a sister in Philadelphia, happened to meet a politician, afterward writing him a letter, which fell into the hands of the husband.

In the evidence it was hinted that before the husband received this letter he did all the housework, including scrubbing, sweeping and ironing, and gave his wages, $90 per month, to the wife.

The wife, on the other hand, during the seven years of married life, saved the $3,400 necessary to buy the house in which they lived.

TAFT CALLS THE COLONEL UNSAFE

Winds Up Ohio Tour With Slashing Speech at Columbus.

BRYAN COINS NEW ONE

Columbus, Ohio, May 9.—President Taft concluded a three days' visit to his native state here last night with a speech at Memorial hall, in which he vigorously denounced Colonel Roosevelt's attacks on him. The hall was filled to overflowing and President Taft was repeatedly interrupted with cheers, especially in his defense of his advocacy of Canadian reciprocity.

As to many of the issues upon which his predecessor is fighting him, he said they were policies which Colonel Roosevelt himself had advocated, both as president and private citizen.

He scored Colonel Roosevelt as an advocate of class hatred and a man who is appealing to the element of discontent. "It is dangerous to put such a man in the office of president," he said.

"Mr. Roosevelt is not a safe man for this country to trust, with his ideas as to the recall of court decisions," he declared with emphasis.

Answering the colonel's charge that he was using public office patronage to obtain his renomination, he said 70 per cent. of the present public officers were Mr. Roosevelt's appointees, and a majority of them are now fighting for the colonel's re-election.

Immediately after the conclusion of his speech President Taft left for Washington.

TAFT POLITICAL BANKRUPT.

Mr. Bryan Applies New Phrase to the President.

Lima, Ohio, May 9.—William Jennings Bryan ended his speech-making for the day here last night in denunciation of Judson Harmon as prince of reactionaries. Mr. Bryan spoke in Memorial hall to a large audience. He left this morning for Delphos and Van Wert. "I am for Wilson in Ohio," Mr. Bryan said, "but I am for Clark wherever Clark is pitted against Harmon. I want to put a blister on Governor Harmon. I want to make my statement as strong as possible. When the governor of a great state deliberately repudiates the platform of his party as Harmon did in opposing the initiative and referendum, he becomes unworthy to have any office from constable up or down."

Mr. Bryan referred to President Taft as a "political bankrupt."

ENGAGED, PHONOGRAPHS IT.

Girl's Odd Way of Making Announcement to Friends.

Leominster, Mass., May 9.—Miss Edith Lee Dewitt startled some friends whom she had invited to meet her brother's bride-to-be, Miss Otis, of Medford, by having a phonograph announce her own engagement.

"We'll have a song on the phonograph," said Miss Dewitt to her guests.

She cranked up the machine and then came these words in the voice of the young woman's father:

"Ladies and gentlemen, I beg to announce the engagement of my daughter, Miss Edith Lee Dewitt, to Vallery H. Tarbell, of No. 1283 Commonwealth avenue, Boston. Now get busy for the next thing on the program is the congratulations."

Albert Fortis, aged 21 years, a son of Mr. and Mrs. William Fortis, 627 East Wayne street, carried off first honors in a swimming and diving contest Wednesday night at the Temple theater. He will be presented with a silver loving cup next Friday night.

COIN TOSS SETTLES SUIT.

Winchester, Ind., May 9.—A lawsuit for $12 was settled here by the toss of a penny after the litigants had made several efforts to compromise. When the case was called in court George Coats, the justice, suggested a compromise. Twenty-five cents stood between a settlement, and neither side would give in. The justice suggested tossing a penny. Both sides agreed. Defendant Milton Halpin took "tails" and Edgar Pierce "heads." "Heads" rolled up and Halpin settled.

Liquor Habit Cured

IN FIVE DAYS

It is a known fact that persons addicted to the liquor habit shorten their lives; that the constant use of liquor will produce diseases and cause financial loss or failure.

This treatment is harmless and leaves no bad effects. No minerals or injections used.

Each patient is given a private room. Meals are served in the room of each patient. No one knows you have taken the treatment unless you tell.

We contract to effect a complete cure satisfactory to the patient or the fee shall be refunded on leaving the institution and the treatment costs nothing.

PRIZES FOR MULES.

Columbus, Ind., May 9.—In order to stimulate interest in mule breeding in Bartholomew county farmers have made up a purse to be offered as a special prize in addition to the regular prizes at the Bartholomew county fair, for the best mules exhibited. "When a race horse runs around the track in two minutes that's sport," said John L. Jones, president of the fair association, "but when a mule goes around the track and shows he is a good animal, that's business. We want fewer race horses and more mules."

HUSBAND NOT LIABLE.

If Wife Already Has Sufficient Clothing.

Cincinnati, May 9.—That a husband cannot be made to pay for clothing purchased by his wife if she already has sufficient clothing to be comfortable, was the opinion of Common Pleas Judge Brownell, expressed in the suit of Elizabeth H. Fleming against Matthew Richter.

It developed that Richter's wife had a dress made by Mrs. Fleming, a dressmaker, and when she called for the dress she presented a check to pay for it. Mrs. Fleming did not have the difference between the face of the check and the cost of the dress and Mrs. Richter took both away, saying she would send the money.

The bill was not paid and the dressmaker sued Mr. Richter, and Squire Myers gave judgment for the dressmaker.

On appeal Judge Brownell held that as Mrs. Richter was well provided with dresses without the one ordered, her husband could not be held responsible for the debt on the ground that it comes under necessaries, as alleged in the dressmaker's suit.

SNEEZES BETRAY BURGLAR.

Tell Policeman His Hiding Place in Woman's Coal Bin.

New York, May 9.—Thomas Ryan, of 706 Bergen street, Brooklyn, sneezed healthy sneezes which resulted in his being locked up as a burglar. When Mrs. Elizabeth Boerum had finished her shopping early in the evening and had returned to her apartment on the second floor of 332 Fifth street, Brooklyn, she heard suspicious sounds in the unoccupied apartment one flight up.

She went to the Fifth avenue police station and returned with Patrolman Harry Friend. Their search of the house ended in the cellar. From the darkness in the vicinity of the coal came "A-choo, a-choo!" Friend dragged Ryan out of the pile.

FORTUNE IN RAT TRAP.

Fox Lake, Wis., May 9.—Ben Card, a Markesan high school boy, invented an electric rat trap and got $50,000 for his interest in the patent. The government is said to have offered a prize of $10,000 for a successful electric trap that would kill rats, to be used on board ship. Ben arranged with a relative to give him half of the prize to finance the experiment.
